BR threatens to suspend striking train

drivers

The spectre of a total shutdown of the railway network rose last night when Sir Peter Parker, British Rail chairman, said that his board will on Friday consider suspending the 20,000 train drivers who are on strike in a productivity dispute.
Sir Peter said the board would have to study the implications of the two-day strike, estimated to cost BR implications of the two-day strike, estimated to cost BR £12m, by members of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen (Aslef) which started at midnight and the unions threat of further strikes on Sunday and next Wednesday and Thursday and next Thursday.

We shall certainly be con-"We shall certainly be considering suspending all those taking industrial action but we have to go through an awful lot of permutations. At the end of the day the industry is being wrecked by what is happening at the moment". Sir Peter said after a meeting of his executive board.

Suspensions of Aslef members could be expected to produce hostile response from the union executive, which has adopted a militant stance in the arguments over the introduction of flexible rostering. To add to BR's difficulties, a confrontation with the National Union of Railwaymen is garhering force on the sidelines. The NUR, which has agreed to flexible restains for the sidelines. of lexible rostering for most of liss members, wants its 500 driver members also to be paid a 3 per cent increase due from the beginning of this mouth. In addition some NUR guards are unbappy about proposals and militants at the king's Cross depot in London have threatened to stage two lightning 24-hour strikes during the next week. As telephone continued between BR officials and the rail unions in fruitless attempts to find a basis for settling he dispute, people left work early to make sure they got home before BR started withdrawing trains in preparation for the midnight strike.

Cancellations started in the early evening as regional managers tried to get trains in the right location for the start-up on Friday morning. Senior BR officials conceded last night that services are unlikely to return to normal because plans would have to be made for the further strikes.

Asief drivers on the London Underground and the Type and Wear Metro were expected to work normally.

Mr Raymond Buckton, general secretary of Aslef, reacted angrily to Sir Peter's comments. "They seem to be comments. "They seem to be out to make an example of Aslef for questioning their integrity. If they do suspend miteraty. It they do suspend people we will be seeking the support of the whole of the trade union movement," he said. He believed that there were "obviously" political moves behind the scenes and claimed that BR was being pushed by the Government into taking on Aslef.

Test case victory for union

Warsaw court frees Solidarity activists

From Roger Boyes, Warsaw, Jan 12

To cries of approval from the public gallery, a Polish court has freed three Solidarity members accused of organizing a strike at Huta Warszawa steelworks in the first days after martial law.

Two of the men, Mr Leszek
Sokolowski and Mr Jacek

third, Mr Karol Szadurski, received a suspended sentence of 18 months in a trial which union supporters view as a test case.

The trial had attracted wide attention from prominent Poles on the fringes of the Solidarity

Second, the authorities had to seek the cooperation of Solidarity Solidarity leaders—including the three defendants—because they were unable to control the anger of the crowd that gathered in the steelworks on the Sunday and Monday after the military takeover.

The court thus appears to have recognized Solidarity as a partner on labour management, at least in circum-stances where popular unrest can no longer be controlled by the factory directors.

Mr Szadurski, the former president of Solidarity in the steelworks, told the court that he had approached the managers on Monday. December 14, and asked them to calm the crowd but that the managers had said they were afraid of being torn to pieces.

News shake-up considered by BBC

By Ian Bradley Significant changes in the organization and management of BBC news and current affairs, and possibly in its presentation, seem likely as a result of confidential reports now being considered by the Board of Governors.

The reports include a detailed study of the corporation's approach to news and current affairs over the past 30 years by Mr Stephen Hearst, controller of the BBC's future policy group, and a sborter document recently drawn up by Mr Alasdair Milne, who takes over as director-general It is understood that both reports are critical of the present organizational structure of the news and current affairs departments and of some of the radio and tele-vision output in those areas. Particular significance is attached to the fact that Mr

The committee reviewed the levels of mathematical attainment over the past few years, but comes to no firm concu-sion about whether standards are rising or falling.

It notes that while the pro-portion of pupils passing examinations in mathematics was similar to that passing English, more obtained higher grades in Raglish. However, the committee puts that down to the different nature of the subjects and the assessment techniques used, rather than differing standards.

How the General sealed up Poland's free trade union

The first confusing month of martial law is put in perspective by Times staff writers in Warsaw and London

The crisis in Poland is now exactly one month old. It has been confused by rumour and speculation intensified by the official censorship. That has now been partially lifted, and this narrative is an attempt to present a clearer perspective of what has been happening since the midnight crackdown of December 12. Roger Boyes of The Times has been in Poland throughout, one of the handful of Western correspondents in Western correspondents in beleagured Warsaw from the beginning. This account com-viled by Peter Hopkirk, with assistance from The Times oreign staff, draws heavily on Boyes's unpublished diary. It begins:

Saturday 12th December: Fol-lowing a loud party (more theories about the death of the Communist party, fat chance) and a mediocre dinner to celebrate the opening of the ITN office we hear that Masowze (Warsaw Solidarity) has been blocked by militia and riot police and phones the city. This cut throughout the city. Drive around with Dutch diplomat and we decide it can't possibly be an invasion, just a raid on Solidarity. A few diffuse clues that something more serious afoot but ignore them and go to bed about and many Polish families sit up watching late-night television. At 11.45 pm as Boyes was checking the rumours, an announcer broke in abruptly on the Italian comedy film being screened, his voice and face tense. Without explaining why, he told viewers that the station was closing down and that the rest of the film would have to be shown some other time. The screen then went blank. Min-utes later Polish radio also went off th air.

General Jaruzelski's men had seized their first objective. With split-second timing they ook over the television and radio stations, clearly to preempt any attempt by Solidarity sympathizers in the state-conrolled media to try to use them to rally the nation.

At the same time other units were moving through the snow on pre-selected targets throughout Poland. The moment could pardly have been better chosen Most Poles were at home, and nany were asleep. There was ittle, if any, serious resistance. By midnight troops had ringed Solidarity's headquarters. Security men forced their way in md began to ransack offices and drag out filing cabinets containing crucial data about he movement's organization and membership.

Telephone lines to the build-ing had already been cut to prevent the alarm being raised and other Solidarity cells and leaders alerted. Later the military was to claim that compromising papers had been discovered proving that Solidarity planned to seize power. Mil-lions of Poles were still un-aware of what was happening. Those who discovered during the night that their phones had gone dead merely put it down to another failure in the ramshackle system. Across Poland that night in sub-zero temperatures security men were raiding the homes and offices of leading Solidarity members, intellectuals and other "reformists". But they also arrested six former mempers of the Politburo including the former Prime Minister Piotr Jaroszewicz and former party leader Edward Gierek.

Perhaps it was an attempt to signal to the West that this rackdown was different. The irst estimates reaching the putside world of 1,000 arrests his first night were out by 100 per cent. At least double that number were seized and we 10w know it was only a

Perhaps the one comic epl-sode in that night of fear surrounds the arrest of a wellknown "reformist". When security men arrived at his flat they found him in bed with an they found him in bed with an Italian girl. He put up fierce resistance to this outrage, receiving injuries during the struggle. This led to widespread reports that he had been brutally treated, and even tortured, by the military.

At 6 am Sunday, the radio came on the air again, and the nation told to stand by for an important announcement. But by now most Poles realized what had happened. They had only to look out of the window to observe the road-blocks and armed patrols.

"Troops everywhere", Boyes noted in his diary. "Most people in state of stunned shock. Girls cry. There is instant recognition that the Polish experiment is over".

At 7 am General Jaruzelski made an emotional broadcast to the nation, declaring it to be under martial law. Poland, he said, had been "pushed to the brink of war" by forces hostile to socialism. The time had now come for "determined actions the names of supreme imposed daily from 10 am to 6 pm, and everyone over the age of 12 required to carry an identity card at all times. His statement was repeated throughout the rest of the day.

Later, when television re-sumed, it was from studios run by the military, with all the announcers wearing uniform. Boyes recorded: "Chopin, martial music and the General, still in his curious opaque glasses, on the screen and radio all

Confusion produced its dramas. On the day that martial law was declared, the steel workers of Huta Warszawa many thousands of them — gathered at the foundry to work out what was going on. They knew that the Solidarity leadership had been rounded up, that 16 months of effort and campaigning had been

Strike, sit-in and roundups

The strike "organizers" among the most respected in the works, tried to calm them down. More by accident than design, an occupation was declared and the workers began to camp down in the offices of the works. Not until Monday noon was the enterprise manager fully aware of what his obligations were under martial law, the legality or otherwise of a strike. By Monday evening most of the workforce were aware that the 16-page declareven the right of assembly was to be suspended. But by then it was too late. Troops and militia had surrounded the works. There were many arrests. Boyes noted in his diary:

First reports percolate through about who picked up. All of Solidarity leadership apart from Bujak (Warsaw Solidarity chief) nabbed in their hottel rooms in Gdansk. Mixed reports about Lech Walesa — that he has broken down, that he is fine. There are fears among Solidarity members that Walesa, being held incomputations somewhere in memoers that waters, being hear incommunicado somewhere in Moscow, will be misled into broadcasting to the nation and appealing for calm. This would be a great propaganda triumph for the military.

In Moscow the crackdown was applauded. But sources insisted that their own troops in Poland would be remaining in bar-racks. Neighbouring Prague also expressed approval, accusing the West of playing "a returned to Washington, the dangerous game with Poland's State Department announced fate".

With hindsight, Western reaction was slow, considering the scale of events. The Polish General, whether in happy ignorance or from good intelli-gence, had moved on a weekend which caught every principal foreign policy maker in the American administration out of Washington. President Reagan: was week-ending at Camp David; Secretary of State Ale-xander Haig Defence Secretary Caspar Weinberger were in Europe; Presidential counsellor Edwin Meese was on a lecture.

Roger Boyes woke up on December 13: General Wojiciech Jaruzelski, the Communist Party Leader, Prime Minister and Defence Minister announces martial law. He had acted "with a heavy heart". They were not aiming for a military coup. The country was on the edge of the abyss — a phrase everyone took to mean Soviet intervention.

Riot and resistance as the union fights back

The full extent of resistance to General Jaruzelski's junta and his crackdown on Solidarity, to which nearly one third of all Poles belonged, may never be known. This shows the confrontations between workers and security forces during the first month of martial law.

imposed, newspapers suspended, petrol sales to private cars stopped, impossible to leave the town of residence, summary courts set up, official no-go areas declared. One bizarre decree bans all water sports on the Baltic coast (later it becomes clear why — there are two internment centres on the Hel Peninsula). The right of assembly is sus-pended — no more than 10 people allowed in one room. Polish friends feel great damned-up sense of resentment at military and stare at them in the streets as they man the roadblocks. Nobody I meet believes the official reason for Reuter, alone of the Western news agencies, had a line open for a few hours that Monday, because cutting it off was technically more complex. Within a few hours, though the blackout of telex and telephone was complete. Averting a bad international press was, we can now see, only one consider-ation. The blackout was a crucial part of the Military Council's strategy to smash Solidarity. By this means they were able to isolate, and thus neutralize, those of its leaders who have so far escaped arrest, communicating with one another and acting in concert. Through their total control of the media — especially radio and television - they were able to deny Solidarity any infor-mation about what was going on other than their own martial law decrees and communiques. Boyes in a so-far unpublished dispatch which has reached The Times with the aid of a "pigeon" — a co-operative traveller — remarks:

The pluralism that was the union's initial strength and which has perhaps proved to be its ultimate weakness is still there. It is divisive but it is also keeping is divisive but it is also keeping the regenerative spirit alive. Visitors to internment camp Strzebielinek where many of the Solidarity leaders are held say that the men have been holding what is effectively a second Congress in their cells, often losing their tempers and making passionate rousing speches as if they were on a public platform addressing three thousand activists.

Interned Solidarity members have started their own magazine called Free Voice, composed by banging the side of cell walls in code, then written down on one piece of paper and distributed during the exercise hours.

Solidarity activists outside had been active, secretly distributing illegal (carrying a ten-year prison sentence) leaflets calling for a nationwide general strike on the Monday, the first working day following the crackdown. The scale of the resistance did not reach the West. There were 199 strikes, by later official admission. Two of the biggest mass-pro-tests were in the Katowice region, in southern Poland. In one, at the giant Piast colliery, more than 1,000 coal miners were to spend a fortnight 2,000 feet underground in protest against the junta and the outlawing of Solidarity. Nearby, down another mine, a similar and equally determined mass and equally determined mass sit in had begun. These sit ins are fully substantiated, unlike some of the wilder claims of Solidarity — if they did all originate with Solidarity, for some activists accuse the Polish KGB of muddying the waters with false claims intended to discredit them. discredit them. Boyes watched the unrest develop:

After some days of sporadic violence around factories and shipyards, the Poles, gear themselves up for the 17th. The anniversary (eleventh) of the Baltic uprisings, that was to have been a day of protest in Warsaw and other cities. Troops and militia move in in strength.

Admissions of bloodshed

On December 17 — day five of the crisis and President Leonid Brezhnev's 75th birthday — the military admitted for the first time that there had been bloodshed. Seven workers had been killed and 39 injured the two underground sit-ins were in progress. The admission was very likely forced upon them by a claim by Mr. Pierre Mauroy, the French Prime Minister, and quoted on television, that nine people had been killed in clashes and as many as 45,000 arrested. Boyes' diary comments:

Two hundred dead we hear from a traveller, but this is scarcely credible. Impossible to determine any fact. What is certain is that many factories have been resisting in Cracow, Katowice, Lodz, Radon and Wroclaw. The standard tactic seems to be that troops seal off the area, then a short pause—only hours sometimes—in which the workers are given the opportunity to leave. Finally tanks batter down the factory gates and riot police and militia go in to do the dirty work.

How dirty this work really is,

go in to do the dirty work.

How dirty this work really is, nobody knows, though people are unquestionably beaten. Will they ever be able to get the workers to work again? Official terminology is that the factories are 'pacified' thatty exhess of other works. (nasty echoes of other wars — the Poles now talk openly about 'before the war', meaning before December 13.)

When the huge, worker-occupied Lemin shipyard at Gdansk was finally "pacified", armoured vehicles were first used to smash down barricades before the protesters were flushed out with tear gas and baton charges. According to eye-witnesses the final assault, we then learn, was made to the accompaniment, of the amplified recorded voices of women and children screaming with fear, which had a devastating effect on the defenders. A total of 164 workers and 162 members of the security forces, according to a government source, were injured during the fighting.

On December 18 the West German Bundestag passed a resolution called for the release of all detainees, the lifting of martial law and a return to dialogue with "reform-minded and patriotic forces", meaning the Church and Solidarity. Chancellor Helmut Schmidt Chancellor Helmut Schmidt made a speech warning against Soviet interference which he was later to use in Washington as his defence against the American charge of weakness. The United States itself, after its inaction, has begun to growl if now actually bite. It threatened to suspend all future food shipments to Poland, provoking shipments to Poland, provoking a personal phone call to President Reagan from the Pope appealing for food not to be cut off.

The Polish military rulers were increasingly anxious about reaction abroad. Boyes

Officials seem to be getting the message that internment not poular in the west. Some official estimates being drawn up - 5,000 -though they seem ludicrously low pyjamas. A Government spokes-man said last night that work in the camps was voluntary "to break up the monotony of the day" and that some of those picked up might have forgotten to pack warm clothing internment no worse than that imposed on Japanese citizens in America after Second World War was declared. Does he believe this? Most of the listening journalists

Around this time conflicting stories began to spread about the plight of Lech Walesa. One official source, obviously intent on damaging his reputation among his followers and admirers (the vast majority of Poles), described him as "broken psycologically and weep On the other hand, Church sources who had seen him, said he was in good health but held in isolation in a Covernment-owned villa outside

Boves' recently received pigeon report says that three factors were helping Solidarity to stay alive. Walesa's silence was the best possible backbone for activists still at large; he appeared to be insisting that he would only negotiate in the company of his full committee. Secondly, the Church was unofficially helping Solidarity regroup. Against the explicit advice of the bishops, parish priests were allowing union members to meet in churches members to meet in churches

Archbishop Josef Glemp the Primate of Poland, and his fellow bishops just before Christmas smuggled a message to the West declaring that the Polish people were being terrorised by military force. The Pope's special envoy Archbishop Luigi Poggi came and went. Catholicism was not the only religion under pressure. Communist party newspaper in Szczecin carried a lengthy article on the trouble created in Poland by Jews since 1947. Anti-Semitic graffiti appeared on walks along Nowy Swiat, one of Warrang Polynoing shoring of Warsaw's main shopping streets. On Christmas Eve Boyes went to midnight mass in Warsaw's old town:

A depressing affair. Poggi delivers the sermon, Glemp's message read out. The young are dispointed that the church is not being tougher on the martial council (now nicknamed the crow, because the initials of the military council Wron spell out the birds name.)

Christmas for the Polish people was their bleakest by far since the grim days of the Second World War. Apart from the impossibility of sending gifts or greetings to friends or family living elsewhere in Poland, there were also the

The silence of a 'burnt-out' Walesa still holds the key

Four weeks without a pub-licly uttered word from Mr Lech Walesa: a scarcely credible state of affairs for those who have seen the sharp-tongued Solidarity leader in action. Often only seconds divide thought from speech, though he is capable too of. long sullen silences.

In the past month, Mr. Walesa's silence has become Solidarity's most important weapon. After the declaration of martial law, rumours clus-tered around Mr Walesa: He-was reported to be isolated and disorientated. The great fear among other Solidarity members was that he would be deluded into making a television appeal for calm to the nation. That would have implicitly legitimized the military authorities and given them a direct link to the working population.

population. But instead there was silence. But instead there was stiente.

It became evident this week that this was still profoundly disturbing for the Government. Officials have begun to say that Mr Walesa is largely irrelevant, that a new workers' association, a new depoliticized Solidarity could be formed without him that he is a hurnt-out case. that he is a burnt-out case, that he knows nothing, that it is not worth falking to him. As usual, the Government protested too much Poles know that if the Government starts tested too much. Poles know that if the Government starts saying that it is not worth talking to somebody then that is because somebody is refusing to talk to the Government. This is dialectical training.

Inis is chalectical training.

Mr Walesa is pivotal to Government plans. He is not just a union chief, he is an international symbol for the renewed Poland and as such it is crucial to the standing of the is crucial to the standing of the new leadership that Mr Walesa is seen publicly to accept martial law. Mr Walesa, however, talks to the Church, talks to his local Gdansk parish priest, talks to his wife, Danuta, but does not talk at all either to the military council or the party. He is under house arrest in Konstancon outside Warsaw in a comforable house with colour television and other facilities. Outside there are many troops and a few armoured personnel carriers. Why is Mr Walesa holding out? Some clues came in an interview given after the Solida-

By Roger Boyes, Warsaw, Jan 12 rity national congress in September during which he beat off a challenge for the chairmanship from Mr Andrzej Gwiazda, one of the union's leading ideologists, Mr Marian Jurczyk (soon to face trial) and Mr Jan Rulewski, a radical. All three are interned. The interview made clear that, like the movement he represents, he has great stamina. He was a member of a strike committee during the 1970 troubles, and the final analysis could claim enough support in the union leadership to paper over the cracks between the regional chieftains. But the Radom Solidarity meeting immediately after the raid on the firemen presented the world with an altered Mr Walesa a man who saw that his main duty was to preserve the unity of Solidarity and that this could be done only by sharing in the radical postures and heiging to shape them.

It was thus a rather different member of a strike committee during the 1970 troubles, and after his involvement in the 1976 unrest he lost his job in the shipyards where he worked as an electrician.

"Someone could say that because Christ was crucified, he lost But he has been winning for 2,000 years. The fact that I lose today because someone breaks my jaw or someone breaks my jaw or hangs me, does not mean I have them.

It was thus a rather different Mr Walesa who was picked up by the police in Gonak on a Saturday night, a man who was impatient with the quibbling and who was willing to mak the Government hard for whatever the union deemed necessary.

Now after a month of decention, Mr Walesa may have moved even further in this direction: again his silence seems to bear testimony to this and it is a great encouragement to the 10 million Solidarity members, many of whom are now being forced to renounce their membership in order to lost", he said.

His critics in Solidarity had gathered strength in the months between the Solidarity. months between the Solidarity congress and the declaration of martial law. Above all he was being accused of a dictatorial leadership style and of taking decisions without having talked them through beforehand with the coordinating committee. But in the week before martial law, after a large-scale police action against a student sit-in the warsaw Firemen's Acadtheir membership in order to keep their jobs.

Mr Walesa is insisting that he will negotiate with the Government only if he is joined by his full praesidium. That was initially interpreted by observers as a sign of insecurity but in fact it is a clever tactical move. First, if the Government agreed to do this it would formally have to recognize the legitimate. have to recognize the legitimate right of Solidarity to exist and right of Solidarity to exist and function as a umon; second, as most of the praesidium is interned it would mean the unravelling of the Government's internment policy.

Now it is understood that most of the praesidium have been moved from Gdansk to an internment centre near Wassaw. Whether this represents the first step towards a government concession is not clear. One thing is certain: Mr. Walesa is not going to give anything away. "I see two Polands", he said in an interview, "I see the one I dream of and at the same time I see the present Poland beset with difficulties. I see the game each side plays. I see the variants of those games. But I am — we are — capable of winning every single variant of every game."

Solidarity's leaders are under arrest: supporters look through the broken glass and wire of the sealed headquarters building hoping for information. There was none. Silence was a key military weapon.

It was a bleak Christmas for the martial law troops also as they manned often isolated road-blocks in sub-zero temperatures for many hours at a stretch, with few people willing to talk with them. Bitterness towards the military in some places was now running so high that even their families found themselves ostracized. White crosses — the sign of the Untouchable — were daubed on the homes of some, according to reliable sources in Warsaw. On the other hand there were some reports of workers and road-blocks in sub-zero temmartial law troops fraternising, though it is uncertain which way sympathies were running. Eight thousand tonnes of beef, originally intended as a Christmas gift for the people of Poland from the EEC, was cancelled at the eleventh hour lest it be used to brighten the Christmas dinner tables of the military. However, a steady flow of medical supplies and other necessities, including baby milk, blankets and winter shoes, continued to cross the border into Poland, much of it driven overland by voluntary organizations in the West.

There were fewer food short-ages than expected during the Christmas period. Boyes notes in his diary:

Enough food thanks partly to deliveries from East Germany and the Soviet Union which almost miraculously turned up within days of the declaration of martial days of the deciaration of martial law. Clear enough evidence that the fraternal neighbours were consulted beforehand, rather undermining the official version that the decision on the crack-down was taken within hours of Solidarity deciding at Gdansk that it would press for free local Nobody gets drunk any more because one has to leave parties at 10.30 to make it back before the curfew except Christmas and New Year's Eve when curfew lifted. After both days got hold of Solidarity bulletin obviously dis-ributed in brief breathing space. Solidarity leaders who had managed to evade arrest — some 30 per cent it is thought — had been rethinking their tactics. From southern Poland leaflets began to circulate secretly advising Poles on how chaos with the minimum risk. For a start they warned workers not to elect new leaders. This would make them vulnerable to immediate arrest. Instead, a policy of passive protest should be followed. "Work slowly, follow ridiculous instructions' to the letter, harrass the military and the commissars with questions, complain and behave life a half-to cause maximum industrial

wit", was their advice. But in many factories workers had already perfected their own ways of disrupting production. They altered tolerance levels on machine settings in one vehicle plant. When the cars they were producing came off the assembly line, none of the parts fitted together. In one dockyard workers moved cargo from one end of the yard to the other, and then moved it all back again, giving the impression of great industry.

It appears that industrial resistance, whether active or passive, was already successpassive, was already successively sabotaging production, as the authorities have admitted to a sharp decline in production following the imposition of martial law. Even tanks, as Lech Walesa had long ago pointed out, could not force men to work if they were unwilling.

But even if the military council could not force Poles to work, it was determined to obliterate every trace of Solidarity. Defiant posters were torn down again and again, but trade union supporters continued to replace them with fresh ones. It was forbidden to wear a Solidarity badge, but members continued to flaunt them, though with the forbidden name scratched off and only the Polish flag visible. Even empty bulletin boards bearing the movement's name were rioped movement's name were ripped down by the military, although in a Warsaw launderette one still survives intact behind the door with a sombre black ribbon draped over it to signify mourning. And the trials began. Boyes was there:

The trials begin in earnest. Great pomp about Szczepanski (former chairman of radio and tv) whose trial for corruption government anxious to advertise. Trick is to get special court entry ticket for Szczepanski then dive into neighget special court entry ficket for Szczepanski then dive into neigh-bouring courtrooms where ev-eral strike organisers on trial. Hear that his wife is involved in the relief operation at St Martins for internees at St Martins church. Saddest trial that of Lipski (historian and dissident) who looking very pale, very ill. to stand trial but I wonder.

The miners come up

Gradually now the strikes (as opposed to passive resistance) were being broken one by one by the military, either by force or depriving the protesters of food, light and heating. This was the tactic which forced out the 1,000 or so miners who for two long weeks defied the authorities 2,000 feet below ground at the Piast pit. Hungry and weary they finally came to the surface on December 28 and 12 of their leaders were arrested. Officials claimed that the men there and at another pit had been forcibly kept down the mine by a small group of "strong-arm men from Solidarity". The last of the major strikes had been broken.

But if the military grip was effective the impression was now growing among some analysts that Jaruzalski and his fellow generals did not know what to do next. They were having to beg for money from the West. And they had lost the battle for the hearts and minds of ordinary Poles.

So deep was the disillusionment of Poles now that hundreds, later thousands, of Communist Party members were tearing up their cards in protest. In some factories, it was reported, additional litter bins had to be provided to cope with the deluge. Simultaneously the purges began in Party, factories and offices. "There are only careerists and Stalinists left in the party," one disenchanted official was quoted as saying, while some analysts had already begun to suspect that show trials were an preparation for senior party officials who could be used as scapegoats. On January 8, Boyes observes:

Nina, wife of an American correspondent here, asks me to marry a Polish friend of hers to get her out of the country. Even Sniff around the church and the charities. There, seems to be prospect of some movement on internment but nobody wants to put money on it. Church gained terrific ground since Christmas—the combination of Vatican plus echo in Western Europe which makes the Council think the West is serious about internment. Now that US has dropped out of the equation, the government needs Germany and the others more than ever. Church benefitting from the linkage and pushing Gov. much harder.

After four weeks of martial law, almost all of Poland's institutions have lost their standing, either by design or miscalculation. The military have tarnished their White Knight image. The Communist Party is rarely seen and never heard. Solidarity, once a major social force, has been reduced to underground.

seen and never heard. Solidarity, once a major social force, has been reduced to underground status. But the Catholic Church has emerged from these troubled weeks both stronger and more popular, challenging the Military Council, first in discreet tones, then, over the past seven days, with increasing volume. And so far, the Church is the only institution to produce results: It has held the population back from bloodshed and at the same time it has brought the Government to the brink of releasing significant numbers of internees.

Four weeks after the coup there are still large areas of uncertainty: censorship has officially ended but dispatches are seen by censors and travel Government has rarely been frank about popular uprisings. Even now, ten years later, it is not clear whether in 1970 there were 45 victims in the Baltic unrest. The versions of truth in contentious areas can now, however, be compared and to some extent judged:

1. The Government claims that seven miners were killed in the pacification of the Wujek mine in Silesia. The most reliable unofficial report says that 14 were killed. This is based on relatives' testimony that was passed to Solidarity.

2. The Government claims that some Solidarity extremists were holding over 1,000 miners and their relatives hostage, threatening to blow them up. Reliable unoffical reports say that the miners occupied the shaft, their wives and children brought food and then stayed. Explosive charges were placed for that reason. Militia then attempted to storm the mine, the miners took hostages (twoor three militiamen) and demanded that the local radio broadcast their demands, which ever broadcast or how the mine was finally cleared.

3. The Government claims that over 300 were injured in Gdansk on December 17 and one person subsequently died of his injuries. A Gdansk doctor consulted by a Western diplomat testifies to at least two deaths as a direct result of the demonstration. One reliable report says that many of the injuries to demonstrators were caused by people jumping off the Gdanak flyover when ar-moured personnel carriers drove into the middle of a

4. In total, the Government admits to eight deaths. But there are significant gaps in its presentation. It has never for example, elaborated on militia and military deaths, presum-ably because these are military or state secrets. At least one unofficial report - from some body working in a hospital— has spoken of two bodies being brought into a Bydgoszcz hospi-tal, one of an officer who had died of stab wounds, the other had been shot.

5, It is clear that in areas where the militia and troops were expecting trouble they reacted in a far tougher way than on other occasions. In Gdansk, in the Silesian mines, both serious trouble spots, the riot police were evidently on edge and reacted accordingly, with force and by most accounts with some brutality. Some crises have simply been wiped off the face of history. In Radom it was reliably reported that an ammunition factory had been occupied and was sur-rounded by troops. But the end of the saga has never been heard

6. The general conclusion seems to be that there were considerably more deaths than admitted by the authorities — perhaps 12, perhaps 20, perhaps more. But estimates reaching the west of 200 or 54 deaths or 27 in Warsaw alone, all seem to be exaggerated. The Government has not made it easy to deny these rumours, and there may indeed have been some catastrophic shooting incident but there has yet to be a reliably sourced report to that effect.

As the first mouth of martial law ends large scale Warsaw Pact manoeuvres are due to take place, close to Poland's southern border. They carry the ironic code name "Friend-ship 82". Boyes' diary closes by acknowledging some "super-ficial tokens" of a thaw.

tially dangerous manouevre. Day by day, the Military Council for National Salvation has had to come to terms with its limitations. It can pacify factories but it cannot get them to work. It can urge greater productivity, but it cannot supply sufficient fuel and raw materials. It can raise food prices but it cannot guarantee that food production willincrease.

Military logistics were suf-ficient for the first 48 hours of the take over but now, after four weeks, force and disci-pline are no longer enough.

This realization has prompted the Military Council to think about how to recreate Solida-rity. The only organization trusted by the workers. Recre-ate, of course, is not quite what the Government has in mind: rather it wants a transformed organization that can act as a spokesman nominally for the workers, and thus legitimize price rises, agree to the Council's severely revised concept of economic reform, and be, in the true Marxist fashion, a transmission belt of ideas; requests and directives (the greatest of these being directives) from management to worker.

Attacks on intellectuals

The Council would have liked to achieve this as soon as all labour unrest had been quelled in the first week of January. But there are two great obstacles. First, would the new form of Solidarity, a politically neutered Solidarity, be acceptable without Lech Walesa? The answer seems to be no, though there are persistent rumours

(perhaps Government inspired) that he will be freed soon from house arrest.

The second problem is that if the new Solidarity is to be created in the Government

image, it must throw off the radical ballast — the students and the intellectuals. The intel-lectuals are already being discredited in regular newspaper and media attacks, a campaign that may sooner of later be supplemented by a televised trial.

The government will not get

The idea is to soak up the excess zloties on the market, encouraging the farmers to produce more, phase out costly subsidies and ultimately match supply with demand on the domestic market.

Naturally, despite the "public discussion" that is to be buzzing in factories and enterprises, there is precious little enthusiasm for this real cut in wages. The result of the price increases in unlikely to be public protest — the army will make sure of that — but it will aggravate the tension between town and country and make it difficult for the government to offer real incentives at the time when it is desperately trying to get the workers to work. The only way out is a new revised Solidarity to explain and per-suade on behalf of the army and the party.

The other major dilemma is that of the students. The factories have been pacified (the Polish press has devised a number of alternative ex-(the Polish press has devised a tives to the rigid centralization number of alternative expositions were pressions including: factories raised and these will not simply are working normally, trandisappear. A military communique issued on Monday outlined the new tough regulations and clearly demonstrated the authorities' fear of student unrest sparking off workers' protests. "Students and employees are forbidden to remain on campuses and the general view here is that martial law will not now befor a longer time than required by class and fibrary hours students basic duties in-clude a civil and moral posture-... compulsary attendance of all lectures ... discipline intensifted ... rectors have greater power over staff... a system of pre-censorship to be introduced to control all scientific and teaching materials".

The separation of the students and the intellectuals from the workers is the precondition of a new collaborative union. But where will the government find its new union leadership? Who of the interned Solidarity leaders would be prepared to act in such an organization? It is difficult to see any candidates and there have been no reports of road to Damascus conversions in the interpment conversions in the internment centres. The only former Solidarity leader to recant publicly has been Mr Marek Brunne, but he has made clear that he wants to return to scientific research.

A pale shadow

The question is, what would a nominal Solidarity erganization really achieve? Would it get the fearly achiever would it get the farmers to produce more food? Almost certainly not. Without Walesa, without the guidance of the intellectuals, without its socio-political aims, the new Solidarity would be little more than a pale shadow of the old one. positive action over Poland would not only assist the repression of the Polish people but would diminish confidence in the Western reaction to future events throughout the world, Mr Alexander Haig, the United States Secretary of State, said in Brussels today.

"We stand at the cross-roads", he said. "Do we want a world characterized by growing freedom, cooper-ation and security, or increasing repression, confron-tation and fear? Are we going to see nations acting to help to expand liberty and peace, or will international change be dominated by totalitarian forces?"

Poland was a test case.

It is no great praise to describe It is no great praise to describe John Barton's production of La Ronde as much better than last week's lamentable Manchester version. That much could have been achieved simply by returning the piece to its proper place and time, as

Mr Barton has done.

Lest there be any mistake, Timothy O'Brien's stage is surmounted by an Olympian set of baroque lovers, limbs entwined beneath voluptuous draperies, aloofly stationed above their human counterparts, who change partners to Gillian Lynne's prettily choreographed entractes, copulate to a recurring valse triste, pull rank through costume, and otherwise carry out the eternal moves in the mating game amid the cosy briabrac and copious food-supplies of fin de siècle Vienna. If the release of La Ronde from copyright is an occasion for saying whether it is any good or not, this is the production from which you can fairly make up your mind.

One point, much emphasized in all the pre-production publicity and which entirely escapes me, is Schnitzler's alleged affinity with

This piece, at least, comes over this piece, at least, comes over less as a pioneering exploration of the human psyche than as a roue's confession of what beasts men are to women. It is the same pattern over and over again — not only in the dramatic device of passing a partner from each scene into a new bed in the next, but in the style of each man's approach: summed up in the old song as "Wham, Bam, Thank you Mam."

you Mam."
So far as the women are concerned, Schnitzler's insight comes to a stop with the idea that they say no when they mean yes, and that they want a bit of affection afterwards. Should Judge Richards be at a loose end in the Aldwych area, he should be able to garner some choice examples of contribusome choice examples of contribu-tory negligence; but the only ruling he will get from Schnitzler is that, if only men would be a bit kinder, women would have nothing to complain about.

The text of La Ronde reads like a casebook of typical encounters, showing how the same impulse works out in different social circumstances, with no time wasted over detailed character or gradesiance of feelings. According to the over detailed character or gradations of feeling. According to the performance, the same material can appear as erotic pathetic or clinical; and the questionable choice Mr Barton has made is to present the directly sexy working-class characters as less sympathetic than their exercise cocial superiors. evasive social superiors.

We start off with Malcolm Storry's hulkingly overbearing soldier discarding the prostitute like a leaky boot, and repeating the operation with Janine Duvitski's parlourmaid Miss Duvitski then goes into action with young Alfred, bumping and grinding into the living room in answer to his bell, and giving him so little choice in the matter that it is not surprising that matter that it is not surprising that

Alfred (Michael Siberry) then emerges, in the scene with the young wife, not as a calculating wolf but as an apprentice adulterer, easily thrown off his stroke, and celebrating his delayed consum-mation with a show of male authority.

He is partnered by Susan Fleet-wood who, both in this scene and in the sequel with her husband (Tony Church, at his most partonizingly paternal), has evident difficulty submitting to the docile feminine rules of the time. Incredulous, abrasive and mocking tones are always breaking in, threatening to explode in the face of her smug menfolk. A full-blooded character does thus emerge for the first time.

The most Schnitzlerian episode follows in the husband's encounter with the Sweet Girl (Judy Buxton), where the atmosphere of an outing between an indulgent uncle and a favourite niece is abruptly shattered favourite niece is abruptly shattered by the most brutal penetration of the whole show.

The production continues with a splendid comic double act for Richard Pasco (as the Poet) and Barbara Leigh-Hunt (the Actress), both upstaging each other like mad, and calling each other's bluff in order to strike their own attentionhogging postures.
The production, in other words, offers variety and richness not evident from the text; but it does so at the expense of any coherent view of the material. But better be told that sex can be inconsequential, funny and combative, than to have it doused under glib melancholy.

Extemporary Dance

The Place

The virtue and limitation of Extemporary Dance Company arise from the same source, their eclecticism.

Trying to avoid the narrow range of most modern dance groups, Extemporary invite choreographers from many backgrounds to supplement the works made by their own members. The opening programme, on Monday, of their week at The Place had four works by four choreogra-phers, all different in their approach to movement,

Extemporary only narrowly escape the fate traditional to a Jack of all trades. The one style in which they looked entirely skilled was that of David Gordon, the American whose works have previously been given in London by his own Pick Up Company and the Dutch Werkcentrum Dana. In Counter Revolution, made specially for Extemporary, Gordon labels each dancer with two numbers, slight, slick City, to funky dancer with two numbers, slight, slick City, to funkti worn fore and aft on their songs by Rickie Lee Jones worn fore and aft on their otherwise black clothes, then

Starting with simple se-quence games, the combi-nations become more complicated, while the dancers' voices, calling out their own numbers as they occupy a new position or evict a rival, commentary.

The skill lies in swift and accurate handling of simple material in increasingly complex situations. Counter Revolution is fun to watch, and done with engaging enthusiasm, but I wonder how often one would want to sit through it? Contrariwise, Ian Spink's Three Dances, to attractive music for prepared piano by John Cage, are full of interesting movement that would probably repay closer acquaintance.

Martino Tirimo

St John's/Radio 3 The temperature tempted more than a few Monday regulars to stay at home with their radio sets this week, making St John's more than usually reverberant. Or so it seemed when Martino Tirimo, new to this BBC midday series, embarked on the Prelude in Debussy's Pour le piano. His attack sounded unnecessarily violent, and texture was sometimes blurred by the pedal. But, helped by the restraint of the Sarabande, he quickly attuned himself to the building: the central movement was most sensitively shaded. In the concluding Toccata, too, he combined dexterity with enough delicacy to make sense of the frequently repeated contention of how much Debussy owed to the old French clavecinistes here.

For his main offering he close personal affection for this composer. Not a note was left out in the cold, even if in responding to the music's romance he made it more in the nature of fantasy-sonata than severely classical Schubertians might like - not least in the first movement, in which the opening idea was always treated as something mysteriously apart from the basic tempo of the rest.

He was no slave to the metronome in the Scherzo or Finale either, though it was much to his credit that he could melt all hearts in the Landler-like trio of the Scherzo without excessive slowing down. This was exquisitively played, and so was the endearingly simple theme of the Variations. Once or twice, at moments of heightened excitement, his forte left too little in reserve for fortissimo. Once or twice he over-pedalled. But it remained very human, liquid Schubert. Even in the Finale's stream of quavers he always fastened your ear on a

During its years in office

The Grosvenor housing estate: a shattering grimness

Indigenous British architecture, say the Lutyens revivalists, died with Sir Edwin Lutyens in 1944; and — they say — the way forward is to jettison the last 60 years of cultural development and study the Master's earlier work for guid-

The motley gang of revisionists who are promoting this view have been accorded a spread and quantity of media coverage that no discussion of modern architecture has yet achieved. Indeed, the absence of dissent has prompted extravagant claims from luminaries of such organizations as the Art Workers Guild and the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings. Roderick Gradidge, of the former, states that "the the former, states that "the Modern Movement is dead"; David Pearce, of the latter, claims that Lutyens "shows a way forward out of the Dark Ages".

These chaps are wholesomely didactic. Gradidge addresses himself to the task of asking what Lutyens can offer future generations, concluding: "outstanding three dimensional vision; deep understanding and love of buildings of all periods; ... and his feeling for the real needs of his fellow men ...". By implication, he is claiming that architects of the present day — as well as those of the last 60 years — have been lacking such attributes.

That such a sickening exercise in unrealizable nostalgia should receive widespread support is amazing. The revivalists, whom John Betjeman unfairly but accurdescribe "dribbling over finger bowls in the Cotswolds, trying to get back to the Old Morris Movement", are trying to write off three generations of architecture on the basis of selected early works of an architect whose wartime plans for Piccadilly, even his hagiographers admit, were little better than Speer's. Despite the sideways ances at the war graves and New Delhi, the main part of the Lutyens celebration is concentrated upon his pre-1914 country houses.

His more mainstream twentieth century developments do not show any way forward at all: his office blocks have small touches of incidental delight which those of Cooper or Baker do not, but not as much as those of Mewes and Davies. His attempts by turret and colonnade to decorate Grosvenor House, facing Park Lane, after snatching the job from the already appointed architect, do nothing to appease the gross scale of the development. His only mass hous-ing scheme, behind Horseferry Road, has a shattering grimness. So what can we learn from the Lutyens' country houses that is of value today — and of which architects are supposed to be unaware? Quality of craftsman-ship? Certainly, but those craftsmen no longer exist. The last vestiges of them joined the car industry after the building industry slump of 1968. The quality of space? Very fine, but few clients these days are prepared to afford the luxury of grand volumes. galleries, music rooms, twisting corridors, and fine staircases. Beautiful details? Windows doubt, but whereas in 1904 windows and virtually everything else would be made on site, they are new ordered from international catalogues, for reasons of econ-

The money used to house one lucrons client family and an arrange of the constant of the cons Lutyens client, family and servants is now expected to stretch to 60 to 80 people. It may be that Messrs Gradidge and Pearce would prefer a return to the feudal society; but they had better assure themselves exactly where in the hierarchy they would be should that come

The so called "heroic period" of modern architecture between the wars did not, as has so often been stated, reduce architecture purely for the unemployed. The to functionalism or "mathines for calculations of the effect on living in": that development was a postwar phenomenon. Berthold Lubetkin's 1935 country cottage for himself at Whipsnade is, in its own way, every bit as poetic as a Lutyens building.

You cannot blame a man who has been dead for 38 years for the way people abuse his memory. The fact that he did not like Modern architecture is not in itself a justification for writing it off. On the other hand, there is no doubt that modern architects could learn a lot in the way that their rigid and austerely classical approach to designing buildings could be modified by some romanticism and Transport in London has reached a level of chaos and public dissatisfaction that requires a complete change of direction if the problems we now face are to be solved".

Why nobody can win the fares war

Londoners face massive bus and tube fares within months; most will not even feel any benefit that accrues on the rates. Ministers and officials at the Department of Transport are beginning to realize that the brave Tories of Bromley may have brought the entire system of public. transport subsidies into question — requiring radical action of a kind this government simply does not want to contemplate.

Meanwhile County Hall politics are in turmoil. The Labour manifesto is dead.

Publicly jubilant, the Tories Publicly jubilant, the Turies there privately give thanks that last May's victory by Mr Kenneth Livingstone and his colleagues dashed from the lips of their volatile leader, Sir Horace Cutler, the poisoned chalice of open-ended public subsidies to London Transport.

Typically, Labour is most in disarray. The one point on which Labour councillors stuck together has now been lost. After yesterday's vote they take ever more the form of a mobile coalition, coming together on ever fewer is-

In fact, the sentence quoted above opened the transport section of a 150page statement of Labour Party thinking written more than a year ago. It became the manifesto for the May elections: it was precisely to order the chaos and stem public dissatisfaction that cheap fares were introduced.

The policy document, if not the mainifesto itself, had an intellectually coherent basis. It diagnosed the decline in the capital's economy and proposed measures to arrest it. These included a regional version of the National Enterprise Board, buying into and reviving private companies and the reduction of bus and train fares to stimulate employment and attract more pass-

It has to be remembered that the "moderate" businessman who led Labour businessman who led Labour at County Hall until May, Mr Andrew McIntosh, was — and still is — an enthusiastic advocate of these policies. What was lacking on the part of the various Labour caucuses, which made these policies into the made these policies into the manifesto was any appreciation of the fiscal impact; nor did they know when to stop. Mr Livingstone, at public meetings, advocated totally free fares, or at least free travel for the imperplayed. The rates were naive. When the left-wing group associated with the publication London Labour Briefing took control of the GLC's committees after the elections, they were not dis-abused. Either County Hall's highly paid lawyers and

But the splits in the Labour Party at large soon showed, Mrs Anne Sofer had the courage to resign her seat in St Pancras North and then fought and regained it under the colours of the Social Democrats. She was later joined by another ex-Labour councillor and together with County Hall's sole Liberal form a conspicuous Alliance. (Yesterday all three strongly urged the Government to accept the principle of public transport subsidies).

views of uncompromising

All was not lost for the Labour group. After the legal action by the London Borough of Bromley, then Borough of Bromley, then Lord Denning's contentious judgment in the Appeal Court, Labour's ranks held firm. Nothing so unites radicals and socialists with a nopulist errain as the siche of populist strain as the sight of bewigged judges doing the people down: Lord Denning fits the bill.

The day, last month, when the Law Lord's judgment was read seemed to: offer Mr Livingstone a grand chance of pulling his party — and the Liberals, Friends of the Earth as well as a host of ordinary bus and train users — into a useful campaign. Mr McIntosh called it a golden opportunity for unity.

Bur Mr Livingstone's true colours are those of the sectarian. He came to power by caucus, and his allies on the councils. — notably the 25-year-old conscience of the County Hall left, Miss Valerie Wise - would ensure that by caucus he would remain in

When the Labour group of councillors met on Monday night they were riven. Their divisions are likely to grow because the logic of modern Labour politics dictates that the Labour councillors who voted yesterday for a fare increase are to be visited with retribution

This will come in the form of constituency parties pass-ing votes of no-confidence and urging them to resign. No tactic is more certain of codifying the Labour Party's division. Meanwhile, Labour's transport policy document of 1980 was prescient. "Before these policies (on fares) have had the time to produce the reliable public transport service London needs, they are invariably reversed and we continue in a downward spiral".

Will Michelin award Britain's first three stars?

Chefs and gastronomes (including myself) are agog. And all because of what may be nothing more than a printers' decorative embellishment on an invitation card to the launch of the 1982 Michelin Guide. The card is headed with three of the guide's famous stars. Can it, must it not mean that at least one restaurant in Britain is at long last to be granted the ultimate culinary accolade?
The Michelin men are, predictably, maintaining complete secrecy until January 21 when the guide is published. "The three stars on the card do not mean a thing", insisted a bonhominous bibendum at Michelin House yesterday, but nobody believes him.

If only one restaurant is to be promoted, it could be an invitation to fratricide since the two frontrunners are both owned by the Roux brothers. The Waterside Inn at Bray, is the country domain of Michel Roux, and Le Gavroche, newly installed in Mayfair under the charge of brother Albert, were both raised to two stars in 1977. The brothers have told friends that Le Gavrochers have told triends that Le Gavroche was moved to its sumptuous new premises because they feared the old place in Chelsea was too cramped ever to win its third star.

The clever money will take its chance on a double — both restaurants being promoted together.

Since 1977, when the Connaught and the Box Tree Inn at Ilkley were also awarded two stars, the only change at the top has been

Douglas and Professor Stephen Wiseman in the mid-1960s identified several factors in home background, such as attitudes of parents and home circumstances (including availability of books in the house), which were related to children's achievement in school. The Plowden report (1967) gave prominence to these findings and a direct result was (a) the establishment of Educational Priority Areas and the notion of positive discrimination; and (b) a substantial change in parent-school relations throughout the 1970s in menurchals. parent-school relations thro the 1970s in many schools.

"Second, language and learning.
During the 1960s and early 1970s research by Professors Basil Bernstein, Andrew Wilkinson and James Britton identified aspects of language and social class, language in text books and language in the classroom which helped or hindered children's learning.

Dazzling Brideshead

So far so good for Brideshead Revisited in America. At last night's party to launch the series at the National Arts Club in New York, Anthony Andrews and Diana Quick breathed a collective sigh of elief: there had been worries that the slow development of Evelyn Waugh's story-line would frustrate waugh's story-line would trustrate Americans. But Newsweek described the series as "dazzling" and Time reported: "...never before has a novel been so faithfully adapted" (step forward John Mortimer). Jeremy Irons was, unfortunately, unable to share in the enjoyment; apparently he is ill, suffering from snow-induced pneumonia.

Glittering as the remaining stars were, however, I suspect they must have been pushed to outshine the National Arts Club itself. Founded by Remington, Stanford White and George B. Post in 1898, its present building is the brainchild of Samuel Tilden, a former governor of New York State and Presidential candidate. It was designed by Calvert Vaux, who helped plan Central Park, and is now a national landmark. Most important, it has the most exquisite bar, in New York — with a priceless, domed, stained-glass ceiling by John La Farge.

BITING THE POLISH BULLET

relative unanimity achieved by the Nato powers on Poland ought to put an end to the dithering over how the West should respond to the regime of General Jaruzelski. Since the military takeover a month ago - recorded elsewhere in this edition — the Western powers have turned the Polish problem this way and that, unsure of what to make of it. Is General Jaruzelski a Polish patriot who has forestalled a Russian invasion of his country, or is. he a tool of the Soviet Union, doing what the Russians prefer not to have to do themselves? The honest answer is that we do not know, perhaps never will know.

De Domer

Conceivably General Jaruzelski does not make the distinction in his own mind. He is, after all, a Pole, a soldier and a Communist, so that for him conflicts between the demands of national security and of the "socialist commonwealth" do not necessarily arise. If this is so, the Nato response is the correct one. To put pressure on the Polish regime while at the same time placing a share of the blame squarely on the Kremlin is surely sensible. Mr Haig may exaggerate the extent of Soviet involvement in the Polish coup d'etat, just as his European counterparts may have an inflated image of General Jaruzelski as the defender of Polish national honour, but the result is the same. The differences between the Western allies have emerged as differences of degree rather than kind.

There is still the danger that the two sides of the Alliance will find it difficult to agree in practice on pre-cisely how pressure should be applied, whether against Warsaw or against Moscow. Mr Haig speaks of a "vigorous" Western response, and the actions of the Reagan Administration so far bear him out. The European allies have now undertaken to complement the American measures with sanctions of their own, but in terms which on the defeatist assumption are worryingly vague. The that they probably will have Brussels agreement calls on each Nato ally to "identify appropriate national possibilities for action" in accordance with "its own situation and legislation". This might be taken as a reasonable bow in the direction of national sovereignty and the principle of national interest. Some European powers — notably the West Germans — are understandably concerned lest American measures should in some way damage West European economic interests. This has already happened in the case of the planned Soviet gas pipeline to stretched by nationalist un-Western Europe, of which the rest, economic difficulties and Americans have been suspicious all along. The Germans, moreover, are to some extent governed by their history of trading and politilinks with Eastern Europe, which pre-date the German connection with the United States.

The assertion — or reassertion - of such historical patterns of national interest must not however be allowed to cast a shadow over the unity of the Western Alliance. Nor should they be used as a pretext for avoiding serious action over Poland in concert with the United States, or for minimising the impact of such action. Mr Haig is right to emphasise the strength and resilience of the alliance, and right also to expect a corresponding vigour of tone from his allies, something he has not so far received from Lord Carrington. In a series of unusually feeble and flaccid remarks on television, the Foreign Secretary managed to Brussels that all Britain really had to offer was a review of diplomatic representation and exchange agreements, together with other peripheral measures not likely to involve undue hardship, or indeed undue effort. The NATO policy can only be effective if persued with drive, rather than in the langorous and ennervated manner so far adopted by Lord Carrington.

It is of course far from easy to distinguish — as Nato proposes to do — between food aid for humanitarian purposes, and general economic aid of the kind likely to sustain the military regime. Moreover withdrawing credits to Poland and suspending talks on rescheduling the Polish debt entail risks as well as benefits for the West. And it would be absurd to exact punishment in a way likely to have a damaging effect on the Western nations themselves. But what follows from all this is not that sanctions should be marginal, What follows is that sanctions must be precise, well-planned, and above all coordinated.

This has an affinity with military matters in that there must be a clarity of objective. The aim cannot be to bring Poland to its knees, which might be possible but would be questionable, or even the Soviet Union. It is sometimes suggested that cutting off all trade and diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union would precipitate the collapse from the edges inwards of an imperial system already over-a guerrilla war in Afghanistan. This is a romantic notion, It almost certainly under-estimates the flexibility of the Soviet system and the capacity of the Russians, if not the East Europeans, to endure it, even in extremis. More importantly, it would introduce a dangerous unpredictability into East-West relations which would return to the Cold War with thermonuclear knobs on. There may come a time when high risks have to be run — the resolve must always be maintained but it is premature to take the gamble with the stability of the entire continent, east and west, which is implicit in such apocalyptic strategy.

A pragmatic detente is still worth the effort. This leaves the West with the essential but more limited aim of forcing the Polish military authorities to release those interned in Poland, in appalling conditions, and resume their dialogue with Solidarity convey the impression in, and the Church. Pressures to this end have already had an effect. The recent con-cessions — including the lifting of censorship - were undoubtedly a direct response to the strength of reaction in Western Europe and the United States. They were also almost certainly made in anticipation of the Nato meeting in Brussels, reflecting anxiety on the part of the Warsaw regime — and, by extension, on the part of the Kremlin — over what the West might do next.

It is therefore right that while the West engages in the kind of diplomatic fine tuning which has wrung human rights concessions from the Russians in the past, and is having an impact on Poland today, it should make it crystal clear that it has more drastic measures in reserve. These include — as Mr Haig has spelled out - the suspension of talks on arms control, to which the Soviet Union attaches great importance. Total sanctions would leave no reserve threat while forcing Russia back into dark and dangerous isolationism. But selective, carefully calculated sanctions, or even the threat of such measures, could have far-reaching impact on the Soviet Union, and would make it think at least twice before intervening directly in Poland or — a more likely development - preventing the military regime from relaxing. For this to work, the Western powers must act in coordination, however, if not in unison. And they must show that while they do not yet choose to bite quite as hard as they can, they none the less have teeth.

NO MINISTER FOR SNOW

The sea may freeze and snow if there was a minister designed to meet quite excepmay drift as high as the rooftops, but party politics go on. By simply reactivating the financial arrangements for compensating local authorities for emergency spending, Mrs Thatcher has reduced her opponents to complaining that she should have done so sooner, or that she should have gone the whole way and also appointed a Snow Minister, as her predecessors did at such times, to preside over the crisis and be seen to be in charge of coordinating operations. But Mrs Thatcher takes an austere view of anything resembling a gimmick, and she rejected that idea; apart from anything there is no obvious else. candidate on the Government benches equipped with the almost supernatural powers that Mr Denis Howell used to bring to jobs of this kind. At the news of his appointment, droughts would invariably turn moist and oil slicks would slink away from the coast; where he set foot in winter, heat was always found to be in the very sod where. the snow lay dinted. The queasy helicopter ride of the unfortunate Secretary of State for Wales is hardly in the same league.

can be made for putting a minister in charge of the response to a major national emergency. Mr Howell's activities may have had an effect on morale over and above their publicity value. But such gestures look emptyunless there is a real job for the minister to do, and one that is not being done satis-factorily already. There is no reason to believe that the response to the present crisis hardship are great, but it costs are likely to dwarf those would be any more effective remains true that precautions of three years ago.

The Government, only too anxious to put in a good word for local autonomy when it does not conflict with more urgent objectives, insists that councils are well able to cope under existing arrangements, even though the effect of the floods and snow is so wide-spread that it cannot be dealt with by councils purely on a piecemeal basis. The Department of the Environment has regional offices ready to give advice where required, but there is no developed administrative structure at regional level to co-ordinate services. Obviously the matter appears in a different perspective from the snowbound farmhouse than it does from county hall, let alone from Whitehall, and some councils will undoubtedly rise to the occasion with more energy and imagination than others, but as yet there is no reason to dissent from Mr Heseltine's view that councils possess the experience and the equipment to arrange matters broadly on their own. There is always a good deal of co-operation everyday between neighbouring councils, and there seems to be no general wish among those most closely involved, mainly A respectable political case shire counties, for the Government to become more involved closely administration.

It is inevitable that a freak of the weather on the present scale will reveal many deficiencies in the precautions taken beforehand, by public authorities as much as by industry and private spending in confidence that householders. The disruption, they will be treated fairly, in the economic loss and the an emergency whose eventual a false economy. This would be the case under local or more centralised control.

The Government is right to announce special provisions for helping councils to meet the challenge. The rates are too inflexible a source of revenue to give them any chance of meeting the costs simply from local resources. The damage falls far more heavily in some areas than others, and often in those least able to bear the cost. The emergency is rightly to be considered a national one. But the Government can never put wholly out of its mind the need to keep local expenditure within bounds, and although it has been announced that spending due to exceptional weather conditions will not be taken into account when spending is assessed for penal reductions in grant, long negotiations are likely over what items are admissible and what are not. The similar negotiations over the last such crisis in 1978-9 are not yet fully concluded in a few instances.

The mechanism of a 75 per cent grant for spending in excess of the sum each council can raise by a penny rate worked without causing undue conflict on the last two. occasions. It discriminates against counties with high ratable values, like Hamp shire, where the product of a penny rate is about £2m, and there may be grounds for considering whether greater flexibility is desirable in such cases. But broadly the announcement enables councils to undertake necessary

Power cost and smelter closure

From Rear-Admiral David Dunbar-Nasmith

Sir, Your statement (leading article, January 8) that the Invergordon aluminium smelter was already receiving electricity at half the cost of the average Scottish industrialist needs qualification and an appreciation of the economic advantages for the electricity supply authorities of large-scale continuous electricity

These are valuable orders, so far as the makers of electricity and the coal industry are concerned. Both will sharply feel the loss (temporary, I hope) of Invergordon. There are two Invergordon. There are two aluminium smelters in the United Kingdom, not dependent on water power, which are at present receiving power at a significantly lower price than that which brought Invergordon to a standstill.

The Highland Board believe in developments based on the area's natural resources, as did Lord Kelvin when he started alu-minium smelting on the shores of Loch Ness with hydroelectric power over 80 years ago. His success inspired British Alu-minium to build larger plants at Kinlochleven in 1907 and Fort William in 1929.

These private bydro schemes were built before the hydro board acquired a monopoly of developing the water resources of the Highlands. It would not have been possible to build these private cheap power schemes after the formation of the hydro-board, and Kinlochleven and Fort William would now be closed.

The hydro board's original charter charged them "to exploit the water power resources of the Highlands of Scotland by producing cheap electricity which would help to regenerate the local economy'

What has happened to the vision of those who set up the hydro board in 1943 and developed the resources with great skill in the years that followed? Sixty per cent of the hydro power they developed could operate Invergordon and operate it in a highly profitable manner. The remaining 40 per cent could enable a modernised pulp mill to nake proper use of the natural timber resources of the High-lands, instead of exporting these to Scandinavia, as is happening at constituencies are up to date they the moment. There would still be more than enough cheap power left to run several metal-producing industries, such as ferroalloys, saving greatly on the country's import bill:

What would be the cost, as costs there must be? Those of us in the Highlands would have to pay the same rate for our domestic electricity as those throughout the United Kingdom, instead of a marginally cheaper rate. I suggest that the people of the Highlands would much rather have worthwhile long-term secure jobs contributing significantly to the country's balance of payments while paying the going rate for their domestic electricity. This is what is done in Norway and other countries who are fortunate enough to have sources of cheap hydro power, and I believe it is a way of life more in keeping with Highland pride.

There is no doubt that, given a realistic price for a continuous bulk supply of electricity, taking into account the availability in the Highlands of hydro power whose capital costs have now been virtually written off, this medium-sized smelter could be made extremely viable for many years to come. A prize worth every penny of the salvage money and not a "dinosaur". Yours etc.

Liberals in alliance

From Mr George Edinger Sir, One would rather Mr David Wood (feature, January 11) did not expound on what old Asquithian Liberals want. He can't remember Asquith. I can. Having been an active Liberal since 1920 (recruited by Mr Asquith, no less, in my under-graduate days) I can tell him that one thing all Liberals want is fair play that is representation in Parliament reflecting their votes in the country — the way it is in democracies. Not one per cent of seats for 25 per cent of votes, the way it is in Britain.

And that is just what the SDP is offering, and that's what makes all other coalitions that Mr Wood digs out of the history books completely irrelevant; a waste of time to write; a waste of time to read. Yours etc,

GEORGE EDINGER, Reform Club, Pall Mall, SW1.

House of Commons.

From Mr Colin Smith

CRANBORNE,

January 6.

From Lord Cranborne, MP for conditions. We should discuss it Of English poetry Dorset, South (Conservative)

Sir, The letter you published on December 10, 1981, from Dr Marshall reflects the interest be has taken in the question of constituency boundaries. However, perhaps we should remember that Parliament itself determines constituency boundaries. Parliament has, ever since the first complete review of constituencies in 1832, delegated certain points of detail to Boundary Commissioners, but it Boundary Commissioner of has not abdicated authority or To renounced responsibility. To suggest that the Boundary Commission is in some way autonomous is to mistake the nature of authority in the constitution.

At first Boundary Commissions were established ad hoc. However, although they were given a permanent status by the Representation of the People Act, 1948, the constituencies which return members to the House of Commons remain direct creatures that Act (section 1 with schedule 1) and not of the Boundary Commissions. The purpose of the Commissioners is to ensure that Parliament has Commissions. efore it suitable and sufficient information, in the convienient form of widely published and discussed draft proposals, to enable it to consider adjustments to constituency boundaries by Order under the reserve powers taken to Parliament by that statute:

Besides, the authority of an individual member of the House of Commons flows not from the "interest" which he may represent, or from his membership of a particular party or insti-tution, nor indeed from the fact that he was nominated as a candidate, as we all are, by a particular partisan group, but from the fact that he becomes on election the accredited represen-tative of all the people in his constituency. Each of them can identify him with their concerns, and he can identify himself with theirs.

It therefore follows that the Secretary of State can and should use all the authority of his office to ensure that those officials whose task it is to attend to this work should bring forward the proper documents needed by Parliament as promptly as circumstances require. For unless cannot carry the authority that is a prerequisite for the effective representation of the people.
Until 1885, and to a lesser degree until 1918, this authority was based primarily upon com-munities of perceived common interest rather than equality of numbers, a principle which still understandably holds attractions for electors and members of Parliament alike.

All of us who have recently had tives set for redistribution in the context of our own constitu-encies must recognise that the time has come for fresh public debate as to which should be the governing criterion in today's

Cuts in science studies

From the Chairman of the Council for Science and Society and others Sir, University responses to current budgetary cuts are put-ting small interdisciplinary sub-jects into peculiar jeopardy. We wish in particular to bring to public attention the plight of the various departments and units of various departments and units of "science studies" — ie, those concerned with the history, philosophy, sociology, economics and politics of science and technology.

Specific advice on these particular subjects has not been given by the University Grants Committee. Many universities, under pressure, are being under pressure, are being tempted to make this subject area the target for disproportionate reductions in staff. On present information, if existing proposals are carried through, at least 35 out of some 114 teachers in these subjects are at risk of being dismissed or forced into early retirement. A cut of this magnitude would gravely weaken the contribution of this subject area to British higher education.

This would be an extraordinary loss. We look to historical studies to show the past relationship between technology and econ-omic growth, and thereby to

Lost heritage

From Mr Brian Lymbery and Mrs Mary Traynor Sir, Your correspondent's report' on December 31, 1981, about the partial demolition of the Dowlais Stables, Merthyr Tydfil, high-lights an anomaly in the system of protection for listed buildings. Within little more than two days after a collapse of stone from the northern facade the borough council had demolished nearly half of the stables. By issuing a dangerous structure notice the local authority was able to achieve this instant destruction without an inquiry or any requirement to consider the views of the owners and others or to take account of outside expert opinion. The local Heritage Trust has been working on restoration proposals, but its plans were delayed by difficulties in obtaining ownership. It therefore called for emergency shoring up of the façade and barriers to protect the public so that time could be gained to assess the full extent of the problem and to work out a rescue. Its requests were rejected. The chances of now saving this listed building must be very low. From this example it seems that the reason of "public safety" can be used, without debate, to thwart the spirit, although not the letter, of our legislation to protect historic buildings. Outabout it. Yours faithfully.

Revealing the riches

From Lord David Cecil, CH Sir, Your Literary Editor in your issue of January 4 is surely right proposing to read English literature at the university seem to exclusion of poetry. Indeed I am it, that there are government taught literature without having Shakespeare play compulsory for examinations.

If so, it shows that their teachers are unqualified to teach their subject. Her literature is one of England's supreme glories and much more on account of her poetry than of her novels. It has also proved to give more enduring satisfaction.

Readers still delight in Elizabe-Readers still delight in Elizabethan lyrics who would be bored by Sir Philip Sidney's Acadia, and are moved by Gray's 'Elegy Written in a Country Charchyard" as they are not by Classa Harlowe. This is natural. Poary is usually concerned with what a universal and unchanging universal and unchanging human life; novels necessarily with much that is local and ephemeral. Moreover poetry, lmost like music, transcends the limitations of time by appealing to our emotions through our basic primitive sense of rhythm and harmony.

People need to be introduced to poetry early: it is in youth that they respond to it most intensely and get the most out of it; and, unless they come from an unusually literary home, they must be introduced at school. It is therefore the first duty of any teacher of literature to give their pupils a chance of enjoying it. e universities should help by insisting that anyone proposing to read for an English literary degree must show acquaintance with at least some of our great English poets.
I realise that my own practice may not seem to support my principles: for my most widely read critical writings have been about the novels of Hardy and Jane Austen, now apparently the two favourite English classical novelists. I am glad of this; but, speaking as one who taught English literature for 50 years, I should be sorry if it had encouraged anyone to read the works of these authors to the exclusion of those of Chaucer or Wordsworth or Keats or Yeats. Was anybody lonely this Christmas?

"Yes", for sadly thousands of Britain's old people had to stay solitary and forgotten in chilly rooms. While the rest of us enjoyed good company and festive fare they were left to live on memories. And that's how they face all 1982 Alone.

In thankfulness for your Christmas save someone from the daily torment of constant loneliness. Help make another cheerful day centre a reality, where lonely old people find companionship and friendly help.

Thanks to generous-hearted people Help the Aged and its volunteers already bring a great deal of practical care and assistance to old people in great need; but it is still a fact that over 2½ million old people suffer from terrible leneliness - "the worst disease of all", as one of them put it.

Whether you can send £5 or £50 it will be put to good and careful use, £150 perpetuates a loved name on the dedication plaque of the Day Centre you help. Bring joy to old people who would otherwise go without the help they urgently need.

Feeling sorry's not enough and someone's happiness in 1982 depends on your generous help. Please send soon to:

25 Years Ago From The Times of Friday, January 11, 1957

After Sir Anthony Eden's sudden resignation of the office of Prime Minister — because of ill-health — on Wednesday night, events moved swiftly yesterday. Major-General Sir Kenneth Strong, KBE, CB, who made an outstanding contribution to British military intelli-gence in the Second World War, died on January 11 at the age of 81. He was of academic background, his father having been a professor at Edinburgh University. To this he owed his wide intellectual interests which were to lead him to intelligence and to his knowledge of foreign languages. He spoke French, German and Italian fluently, a gift which aided him greatly at Shaef and elsewhere. In 1920 he joined the Royal War, died on January 11 at

In 1920 he joined the Royal Scots Fusiliers. After passing with distinction through the Staff College Camberley, he did a tour as assistant military attache Berlin where peace negotiations on two major occasions. The first was in 1943 when he was selected as the British General to accompany General Bedell Smith to meet mation including warnings the Italian peace negotiators at Lisbon, and subsequently on Hitler's military efforts and plans, especially in the period immediately after Munich He was then posted to carry out the final Italian peace Treaty. Secondly he played an important role in the negotiations of the final German surrender at Rheims to the German Section of the M.I. Directorate in the War

M.I. Directorate in the war Office, where he at once made his mark.

At the start of the Second World War he was a lieutenant-colonel and head of the remarkable War Office German Section (M.I.14) in which he built up and trained a team of expensional officers From the first landings in France until the end of the war. Kenneth Strong not only played a prominent and important role as Head of Intelligence, but also in plans, operations and policy in which it was his belief that a team of exceptional officers who, under his guidance, produced a brilliant and the Senior Intelligence Officer had a useful contri-bution to make, as actually accurate picture of the com-plicated Order of Battle of the Reichswehr and of the intentions of the German occurred.

He was held in the highest esteem by Eisenhower and his staff and thus contributed in a major way to the strategy which resulted in unconditional surrender by Germany.

M.I.14 was generously accepted by the Pentagon as the authority on the German After a short spell as Director General of the Political Intelligence Departarmy and, as a result, there ment of the Foreign Office General Strong was invited in 1946 to undertake his third and longest high level tenure of intelligence work, by forming the Joint Intelli-gence Bureau and to be its first and, in the event, only Director.

The Joint Intelligence ureau was intended to Bureau various types of provide intelligence needed foreign by more than one department in peace and war. It was thus an amalgam of wartime intelligence functions which did not easily fall within the province of any one government department. Interest rate jitters in New York

New York has got financial markets off doorstep of Britain's appalling weather to a fine start to 1982 with its latest round of interest rate jitters. Against a background of medium- term uncertainty over dollar interest rates this year, markets tend to respond badly to any piece of faintly discouraging financial news. And so it has been this week. Last Friday's small fall in United States money supply was considered disappointing and the market is already bracing itself for a substantial increase when the next set of weekly figures

While all this obsession with weekly figures may seem to be hyper-sensitive, it is a fact of market life and symptomatic of deeper worries. For whatever the short-term trend in United States money supply figures the fact remains that target growth for the United States money supply this year is once again well below the likely growth in money gdp. In other words, the prospective monetary supply prospective monetary squeeze remains tight and, as many American observers fear, this means that at some stage in the year there is likely to be at least one round of fresh upward pressure on interest rates.

As over the last couple of days, every time the market takes it into its head that a sharp upward movement in rates may be just around the corner, international funds start to move strongly into the dollar. The reverse side of that coin is downward pressure on other currencies and the need for governments and central banks to reassess their priorities between holding their own domestic interest rates down or follow dollar interest rates up in an effort to bolster their currencies.

The obvious danger for the United Kingdom at the moment is that the worry about a fresh rise in United States interest rates could coincide with a period when domestic labour troubles could put sterling firmly out of favour.
On the basis of the United Kingdom authorities attitude to exchange rate developments last autumn, sterling still has several percentage points of cushion underneath it before the alarm bells start to ring.

The difference this time round, however, is that whereas there were good reasons on the basis of domestic monetary growth for the United Kingdom authorities to support higher interest rates last September, those reasons are probably considerably less compelling this time round.

At the moment, the policy is clearly to see the banking system through the present tax paying season with all the help possible to prevent interest rates from rising, and one suspects that the initial response to any further downward pressure on sterling resulting from higher dollar interest rates would be greater intervention in the foreign exchange markets.

The more interesting question is the response that might be forthcoming should the miners move into a damag-ing strike. To allow sterling to fall temporarily and bank on a significant correction might be a wiser bet than use of the interest rate lever.

British Steel

Pressure for more cutbacks

It now looks certain that Mr Ian Macgregor's jobs axe will be swinging into action again. The latest bombshell to be dropped by British Steel Corporation's chief is that original production targets at 14.4 million tonnes cannot be maintained and more jobs are likely to go.

How much blame can be laid at the conditions, which could cost the Corporation as much as £100m in the current year, is difficult to assess, but damage has been done just at a time when it looked as though industry was getting back on course.

But the anti-dumping suits filed by United States steelmen is far more disturbing because it hits British Steel, as well as other European producers in the profitable specialist products mar-ket. Although the action by American steel-makers is going to hurt their action was hardly unexpected. After all they regard the importing of British and other European steel as being unfair competition because the industry is so heavily subsidized.

In the current year BSC expected to sell between 300,000 tonnes and 400,000 tonnes of high quality specialist steel products to the United States while next year the Corporation forcasted exports up by about 100,000 tonnes. In terms of BSC's overall production figures American exports are not large, orly two or three per cent.

Monday's statement from Mr Mac-Gregor now looks as though it has been timed to prepare the unions, Government and the public for further cuts in the workforce and plant closures. His plans for a slim-down to about 92,000 by this summer have already taken a knock and the proposed reduction has been deferred to next year. It appears feasible in light of recent events that a further 20,000 could lose their jobs as the Corporation attempts to stem the rising tide of losses caused by the atrocious weather and the United States anti-dumping action.

Mr MacGregor has also forecast a break-even in the financial year 1982-83. As he admitted on Monday a deep shadow has now been cast over that ambition and a reappraisal is taking place over the coming few weeks to see what action has to be taken to put the ailing Corporation back on the rails.

Diamonds A difficult

After a year of gloomy tales from diamond dealers the Central Selling diamond dealers the Central Selling Organization yesterday provided hard evidence of how bad the market has been. CSO sales slumped 46 per cent last year to $1,472m, probably below even what De Beers expected. Since the first half figures were 40 per cent lower at $940m, the downward trend appears to have accelerated in the second six months despite a modest rise in American Christmas sales. American Christmas sales.

The wakness of the market is just another sign of the difficulties facing all tangible assets: high interest rates and the squeeze on disposable incomes are Darticulariy Gangerous for a bistant luxury such as diamonds. So large rough stones for investment could barely find buyers, and it was only specialized qualities such as the very small stones cut in Bombay or the new and rising markets of south east Asia and South America which showed any

But the poor results were not just caused by low demand. They were also the deliberate outcome of the CSO's efforts to calm the market and ease some of the pressure in the cutting centres by witholding stones. Sights have been smaller than usual and the syndicate has tried harder to match the stones offered to what dealers can sell. Stocks of rough and polished stones have fallen sharply in the cutting

Du Beers' grip on the market is as strong as ever. But the company must be paying a high price for its determi-nation to maintain its preeminence. Even if De Beers has reduced its own diamond output, the company still stands in the market accepting some 80 per cent of the world's diamond production. The strain must also be felt by Anglo-American, itself suffering from a feeble gold price. Until underlying demand recovers, however, and De Beers can feed more stones to the dealers we should expect more duli

Indeed, so proud is the insurer of its work that its pamphlet, printed to cele-brate its changed attitude toward privacy, has the ring of a revivalist meeting. It notes that "it is now appro-priate three years after the articulation of The Equitable's privacy principles, to evaluate our success in adapting operating pro-cedures to comply with those principles. It is time to look critically at each principle and relate it to Equitable's role as insurer, employer and corporate citizen".

Such self-consciousness leads to good policy, like its system of having benefits claims made by New York employees handled by other offices "so that there can be no opportunity for the 'curious' to gain access to personal information about fellow employees." In additional construction and the components of the construction of the construction and the components. ellow employees". In addition, the company destroyed a lot of outdated personnel files and rewrote its authorization forms to limit what it could ask for. What is the information to which an employee should have access? Professor Linowes, whose commission set the guidelines for American corporations says: "The idea is to have minimum intrusiveness. If information is not needed, it should not be asked for or put into the records. An employee need not necessarily see his whole file, especially relating to promotion and job evaluation, but he should know what's being done with the

The Government com-mission guidelines have been taken up by influential trade groups like the United States Chamber of Commerce and the Business Roundtable, while the government is promoting the cause of the guidelines estalished in 1980 by the Organization Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).
According to William Fishman, the American nego-tiator at the OECD discussions: "No other country, including the United King-personnel records, while the Europeans opted for an omnibus approach that left most of the responsibility in the hands of government.

were equally concerned with government intrusion on individual privacy, the Europeans were satisfied to entrust enforcement of individual rights to government.

Professor Linowes says that he is groud that his commission's report was used by the OECO negotiators, but he sees the Europeans as more interested in controlling day flow between countries that the orotection of individual protection of individual rights. Stopping the data flow would of course protect individuals, but not for the issue of civil liberties which issue of civil liberties when the American motivated the America commission.

American business has OECD guidelines as to the programmes. indigenous There is the extra incentive of knowing that failure to adopt the OECD procedure may stop the trans-border data flow, as some coutries Those who have followed the progress of American companies on this issue have noted, as did Evan Hendricks, that "This is one of the few areas where business really has tried to get out in front of a social issue Senator Sam Ervin tried for 10 years to get a privacy act passed," according to Professor Linowes. "But not until Waterate did anyone pay any attention". The force of opinion then produced a freedom of information and privacy Act that allowed individuals to get an unprecedented amount of information out of government, including FBI and CIA Corporate willingness to expose its own flanks grew out of the same reforming mood of the country. And at time when the Reagan Administration is attempting to curtail individuals' rights to get information from the FBI and CIA on national security grounds, American corporations continue to adhere to the principles to which they agreed.

Notice of Forfeiture of partly paid Rights Shares of HK$2.50 each

On 2 November 1981 an announcement appeared as an advertisement in the press in Hong Kong and the United Kingdom informing holders of partly paid Rights Shares who had overlooked their obligation to make payment of the Final Call of HK56 per share by 22 October 1981 that the Directors of the Bank had decided not to implement the right to forfeit the Rights Shares, provided that payment of HK$6 per partly paid Rights Share (together with interest at the rate of 20 per cent per annum on the amount overdue from 22 October 1981 until the date of payment) was made not later than 3 p.m. (Hong Kong time) on 15 December 1981.

On 19 November 1981 a circular was sent to all persons whose names appeared as the registered holders of partly paid Rights Shares on which the Final Call had not then been paid reminding them of their obligation to make payment of the Final Call and stating that failure to pay the relevant amount by 3 p.m. (Hong Kong time) on 15 December 1981 would result in the partly paid Rights Shares being liable to forfeiture for the benefit of the Bank.

The holders of 337,260 partly paid Rights Shares have failed to pay the Final Call on such shares by the due date, as a consequence of which such partly paid Rights Shares have been duly forfeited to the Bank by resolution of the Directors of the Bank passed at a Board Meeting held on 12 January 1982. Individual notifications are being despatched to the relevant persons.

All certificates representing partly paid Rights Shares are no longer valid and should be returned for cancellation to Central Registration Hong Kortg Limited, Hopewell Centre, 17th Floor Mezzanine, 183 Queen's Road East, Hong Kong.

Business Diary: Those BA boxes Sea change

British Airways has abandoned what it thought was its pioneering cost-cutting exer-cise of providing passengers on some of its European routes with carry-on meal

Now BA cabin staff distribute the meals on board, but they are still packed in the offensive boxes. The reason is that BA has vast stocks of the boxes and cannot afford to throw them away. How-ever, once they have been used up, BA promises that the traditional trays - which themselves are not one of the things — will return.

England will play a semi-fit Botham in their final thrust Apart from the odd bout of asthma, Botham has hardly had a day's illness in his life. Like so day's illness in his life. Like so many strong men in these circumstances one gathers he is proving both a bad patient and a puzzled one. It speaks volumes as to his worth to England that the selectors would be prepared to gamble on a semi-fit player. As Fletcher, the captain, put it: "He is irreplaceable to us as batsman or bowler, even though at the same time, I believe we can still win this game if the worst happens and it really does prove impossible to pick him." mpossible to pick him."

England named 13 of the original 16-strong touring party today as candidates for tomor-row's match. Compared with the row's match. Compared with the side in last week's fourth Test in Calcutta. Allott and Dilley definitely come in for Boycott and Emburey. Cook stands by to play if Botham does not. There was better news this morning of Taylor, who was able to practise after his nose and throat problems but Richards will keep wicket if Taylor has any relapse.

wicket if Taylor has any relapse.

All these matters will be resolved while most people in England are still asleep and it is superfluous to enlarge on them at any length. If Botham does play, the plan is for Tavare to open with Gooch and for Fletcher to bat at no 3. Tavare has not opened in first class cricket for five years, although he has done so for Kent in imited overs' matches. Tavare does not mind the responsibility but hopes England win the tess, as he does not enjoy having to come off the field and reemerge 10 minutes later to bat.

From Richard Streeton
Madras, Jan 12
England intend to select Iam Botham even if he is only 80 per cent fit when the fifth Test match with India starts here tomorrow. Botham's presence is felt to be so vitial to England's effort to level the series that the tour selectors are willing to include him in the hope that he might contribute something as a batsman and could be strong enough to bowl before the game is completed.

Botham still had a high temperature today from the virus infection which has laid him low, after spending the night sweating profusely. Botham himself is determined to play, which to anyone who knows the man probably settles the issue. This particular type of virus infection can pass as rapidly as it strikes a man down, though the patient, inevitably, is left weak.

Apart from the odd bout of Various circumstances have combined to prevent Fletcher seeing a great deal of Aflott in match play on this tour. The Lancashire bowler's form at Jamshedpur last weekend was something of a revelation to the captain when he had the chance to watch him from sideways on. Fletcher today was generous in his appraisal of Allott. "He seems to have gained half a yard in pace and can now bowl a bouncer that can make people hop about a

To many onlookers on this tour Allott's greatest virtue has been his ability to bowl straight and to sustain his effort. So far in this series the prime fault of England's quicker bowlers has been that they have bowled far too many balls that can either be left alone or punished with confidence. England now look better equipped than India in this match if the wicket really does contain some life. Even Gavaskar, around whom India's batting revolves, has looked unsettled against the occasional ball that has forced him to hurry his stroke in the earlier games.

Botham, of course, is so richly endowed with natural aptitude that England are perfectly correct to want him to play regardless of his state of health early in the match. The itinerary has given Cook few chances since the Test programme began and his game, inevitably, had touches of rustiness about it in Jamshedpur, much as it would be thoroughly deserved if he did win his first cap. This touring team have been extremely fortunate in the way that the reserves have borne up, with Cook, Richards and Allott all contributing a great deal to the party's overall spirit in spite of not getting as much cricket as they would have liked,

India seem certain to omit Gopal Sharma, the off-spinner, from their 12, meaning that the all-rounder, Yashpal Sharma, will play and that Pranob Roy and Ashok Malhotra will make their Test debuts.

Fletcher did not think India were any stronger for having dropped the aggressive Srikkanth from their side. Srikkanth may always have been giving the bowlers a chance but if he stayed two or more hours it would mean he had sixty plus to his credit. Most people see the inclusion of Roy and Yashpal Sharma, who bowls medium pace, as an indication that India are intent on another draw, and they could be right. Tomorrow's match represents England's final chance to keep the rubber alive, with everyone unanimous that the sixth Test in Kampur will be drawn, five years ago under Greig, England chinched the series when they won in the heat and high humidity at the Chepauk ground here by an innings and 200 runs in a geme made nominious for the so-called Vaseline incident, with Lever innings and 200 runs in a geme made nonprious for the so-called Vaseline incident, with Lever accused of all sorts of machinations. With or without a partially fit Botham they are going to find it much harder this time. That dreadful last afternoon batting collapse in Bombay that cost England the first Test will surely baunt Flatcher and will surely haunt Fletcher and his team.

W Indies ease into finals

Cricket Correspondent Sydney, Jan 12

Pakistan, playing under floodlights for the first time, were no

Needing 192 to win, West and keeps alive, albeit faintly, Anstralia's hopes of joining them there.

Pakistan, without Majid, who has hurt his back, Mudassar, who has a finger injury, and Sarfraz, who complains of finding the white ball difficult to see under the lights, were heavily outgunned today. Needing 250 to make a close match of it, in perfect conditions for batting, they were never going to get them after being 32 for three with Zaheer out for one.
Pakistan's fielding was nothing like as good as against Australia last Saturday — on winning the toss they opted to use the natural light for batting and to field after sunset — and they found Greenidge, Richards and Lloyd in punishing form with the bat.
Should the same two sides meet in the finals, which are over the best of five matches, the first of them at the end of next week, Pakistan will have to bat to the best of their ability if they are to have any chance. This, today, they failed to do. Having started as though they might, they were glad in the end to make even as many as they did.

Two of Pakistan's firt three batsmen, Mansoor and Zaheer, were run out. At 75 for five, with Miandad and Saleem also gone, the game was in need of someone to save it, which to some extent.

the game was in need of someone to save it, which, to some extent, Imran, helped by Wasim Raja and Tahir Naqash, did.
Imran's 52 not out was a splendid innings. He has a considerable following in Australia, where the female of the species are greatly taken by him. He is also a time cricketter.

he again bowled well, but not as well as that. It was fun to see him spinning the ball and making it bounce. Purveyors of leg breaks are becoming almost as scarce in Australia as they are in England.

The attendance was 10,995, not counting the Bunny Club girls who provided the entertainment during the dinner hour with almost naked tugs of war among themselves.

youth scheme

Surrey have launched a youth scheme which they hope will not only find nine to 19-year-olds good enough to play for the county, but also anearth those talented enough to reach the top in Test cricket.

Micky Stewart, manager of the county side, welcomed the new sponsorship by the Nestle company which will make available group coaching, individual tuition, regional squads, county squads and national recognition.

It will be known as the Nescafe award scheme and be worth £17,000 over three years, with money available for the best young players to continue their cricket rution, in oversees countries during the winter.

"Some 2,500 youngsters will be involved at the start", Stewart said. "These young players will be able to go right through from the grass roots to Test cricket.

Pakistan make point as Germany fade

in the end they whelmed by the proliferation on Pakistan's attacks.

After forcing an abortive short-corner in the first minute West Germany scored in the fifth through Heiner Dopp, who received a pass from the right, swerved past the Pakistani rightback and pushed the hall beyond the reach of the goal-keeper. In this period of German ascendancy, they did not fully exploit the uncertainty in Pakistani tan's deep defence.

Bombay, Jan 12:

Pakistan 3 West Germany 1
At the end of a hectic fortnight of sweat and toil, Pakistan ware again sitting on top of the world again sitting on top of the world. Their victory over West Germany of their country the symbol of their country the symbol of hockey supremacy which they themselves had donated in 1971.

Pakistam won the World Cup in Buenos Aires four years ago, and also in its inaugural year, 1971.
But in this tournament they had a point to prove. It was for them a period of restoration after losing the Charupious' Trophy on their own soil last Jammary. This event was also inaugurated by Pakistan in 1978, and they will try to retrieve it from the Netherlands when the event is held at Amstelveen, near Amsterdam, in June this year.

Air Marshal Nur Khan, the President of the Pakistan Hockey Federation, said that today's final was the most one-sided be had ever seen, and few would disagree with bim. For about 10 minutes the Germans played superb hockey. Within five minutes they were in the lead but the pleasure they gave was ephemeral and the cost of desperate tackling, prohibitive. In the end they were overwhelmed by the proliferation of Pakistan's attacks.

with record loss

The fourth division club, Bournemouth, made a record loss of £178,000 in the year ending last May, following a loss of £67,000 the previous year.

Their chairman, Harold Walker, said the loss reflected the depressing times through which football was passing. "Let's hope we have turned the corner", he said.

Earlier in the season Barnes was rold he must put more effort into bis play.

Brian Flynn, Leed's Welsh midfield player, has rejected a move to Stoke. The breakdown comes after the clubs had agreed terms at £300,000. The loss of the income from the transfer will be a blow to Leeds. Flynn said:

"After considering everything I decided I would stay at Leeds and try and win my place back."

Gerry Gow, the Manchester City midfield player, yesterday had talks with Rotherham manager Emilyn Hughes. City are believed to be asking around £100,000 for the former Bristol City man, who has made only seven first team appearances this season.

The Brighton manager Mike Bailey yesterday confirmed that two of his players, the midfielder, Gordon Smith and the full back Gary Williams, have asked for transfers. Mr Bailey said he wanted Smith to remain part of the first team squad but he was prepared to let Williams go if the right offer was received.

Smith, signed by the former Brighton manager Alan Minlery in June 1980 for £400,000 from Rangers, was in no doubt about Rangers, was in no doubt about his position. "I've now finished with Brighton. The manager has told me that he doesn't intend to play me unless there are injuries or the team has a bad run.

Daniel Bertoni, a forward with Malian league leaders Florentina, is expected to join the Argentine mational team in April, to prepare for the World Cup in Spain. However, Bertoni's departure, before completion of the Italian championship, would leave Florentina without its leading striker in the crucial final stages, and the player said: "It would be embarrassing for me to make a choice. I hope Florentina and the Argentine officials produce an agreement about my employment". Thaw improves prospects of staging Ipswich tie

Ipswich Town are confident that they will beat the freeze and stage their League Cup quarter-final against Watford at Portman Road tonight. The match was put back 24 hours but East Anglia less avoided the worst of the snow and a slow thaw has begun. There will be a pitch inspection this morning but Ipswich do not visualize any problems. The news was less encouraging for Aston Villa and Tottenham Hotspur whose quarter-finals against West Bromwich Albion and Nottingham Forest respectively have now been rearranged for Monday. Villa and Spurs, who are both still in Euprope and the FA Cup as well, face more serious fixture problems than most other clubs. Spurs have six league matches to re-grange, Villa have five and the figure will increase if either club goes further in cup competitions. Thissen has resumed training after a long lay-off but the luswich manager Bobby Robson believes he needs Bay-off but the loswich manager Bobby Robson believes he needs at least one outing in the reserves before being considered for the first team.

Colchester United hope the slightly milder East Anglian weather will afrow them to go ahead with their FA Cup thirdround reolay against Newcastle United. Manchester United are due to meet West Ham United in a first division match at Old Trafford, but the pitch is frozen Sunderland's FA Cup, thirdround replay against Rotherham United tonight looked likely to go ahead after an inspection by the local referee George Tyson The Scottish Cup outlook became even more bleak yesterday after the twelfth postponement of first-round ties today.

Stenmark regains form at most appropriate moment

Bad Wiesses, West Germany, Jan 12.—With the world championships less than three weeks away, Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden continued to show today that he will be difficult to dislodge as the champion of the two slalom events.

Stenmark won both races at the 1978 world championships at the 1978 world championships, with 65.

Stenmark won both races at the 1978 world championships, which are in Garmisch - Partenkirchen, West Germany, and at the 1980 Lake Flacid Olympics, but his form through the early part of this season suggested that his days of glory were over. Then on Saturday at Morzine, France, the 25-year-old Swede gained his first victory of the season by winning a giant slalom and today he followed that up by taking the men's slalom bere. He did it with the sort of performance which has been his trademark throughout a remarkable career. Stenmark was been his trademark throughout a remarkable career. It is rather sad, even ironic that a side halled before they arrived here as the most exciting

Only seven teams—Midlands (twice). Oxford University, Lonfruice). Munster. Wales. (twice), Oxford University, London (twice). Munster, Wales, Scotland and England—crossed their line. But, if scoring tries is the name of the game (which, alas, it too often is not in the final reckoning). If it was sad that on account of his injuries we hardly saw the best of the gifted Mike O'Comor, we also had too few glimpses of the talents of Brendan Moon, a swift and pottent wing. Day in, day out, the hard worked Andrew Slack, a player's player, was the most creative member of their mid-

This, meant that, after coming off in the second half in Cardiff and missing the international against Scotland, in which Philip Cov again was a lively and capable deputy, he had to content himself at Twickenham largely with spinning out that marvellously quick service.

Hesford is not hopeful

The Bristol No 8, Bob Hesford, is doubtful for England in the march against Scotland at Murray-field on Saturday. He has recovered from a swollen leg, accidentally raked in the march against Australia, but strained ankle ligaments are giving him trouble and he was not too optimistic yesterday about his chances of playing.

Hesford has been having cortizone injections and will be reporting his state of fitness to the selectors this morning. Meanwhile. Mike Teague (Gloucester), who played at No 8 for the Rest in the England trial, has been put on standby.

Yesterday his 101st came in a 6-3 win against Japan in Osaka, thus overtaking Tony Jordan, whose achievement of a century of appearances had been the record since 1970.

The two players could hardly be more different. Looking at them, Jordan had so much talent it was almost coming out of his ears, while there were there were a proposed. there were those who reckoned the young Stevens might be lucky to make the county side. In return the game made him into one of its best-loved personalities—not just in England, but internationally. "He's loved universally", John Havers, chairman of the England selectors, says.

Stevens is in fact almost an archetypal English hero, from his love of fair play and modest bearing to his un-affected manner and adenoidal accent. Despite his success, he is sufficiently unaltered to re-tain his old friends and yet ambitious enough to make playing for England his abiding "I would give away information or advice to a fellow Eng-lishman, even if it could be from April 1 to March 31 next year, will be.

And, as everybody must be aware by now; the levy is the industry's lifeline. The reason why Mr. Langdon has been called in at all is a long running dispute between the Levy Board and the bookmakers over the size of the levy and, in particular, over the increase wanted by the board.

As a result of their disagreement, intransigence, call it what you may, this dispute ended in the Home Secretary's in-tray towards the end of the autumn, to be sorted out by him. Until Mr. Langdon reports it is now in the pending tray.

Just before Christmas, Michael Seely put the bookmakers' case and explained why some of their senior members are insistent that the levy rates, which should have yielded £17.6m during the same 12 month period spanning 1981.

At that level the average levy would be less than one per cent of turnover or, to put it another way, an increase of only one fifth of a penny. What, some of you may well ask, is the additional money needed for. The board's answer is that it is vital to restore and maintain an adequate level of reserves and also maintain improvements to the technical and security services which are aimed at safeguarding the integrity of racing; services such as the camera patrol and dope testing.

More money is also needed urgently to provide additional resources for the establishment and operation of a self-contained apprentice training school and, every bit as important, for veterinary research as well because as everybody in racing knows, whether they be trainer, breeder, jockey, apprentice, or, indeed, punter will concede, a healthy horse population is of paramount importance if confidence within is to be maintained.

An improvement in the ben-

An improvement in the benefits for retired stable employees, the provision of better medical arrangements for jockeys on racecourses and the necessity to make provision for greater expenditure on the marketing of expenditure on the marketing or racing as a spectator sport, in order to maximize the turnstile revenue of the industry, are other items high on the list of priorities as is the desire to provide at least some, if not all, of the money to safeguard the of the money to safeguard the future of the Grand National at

Against that backcloth, more money has clearly got to come from somewhere if those ideals are to be met over and on top of are to be met over and on top of present commitments. So the board intends pressing its point that the current levy is inadequate to meet the demands that it feels legitimate because it does not consider that it will be serving racing's interests at all well by taking no action when bookmakers have been increasing their deductions from punters to improve their own position.

a levy declining in real terms, could only be damaging to racing, bookmakers and punters alike.

In July of last year the Levy many thousands and is enjoyed by countless more. It will committee to approve a twenty-first levy scheme which would yield £28.5m. That would have amounted to an increase of £8m try is every bit as important to over and above the estimated abandoned.

The brightest bope for a resumption is in Ireland at Navan, where the course manager, Louis Noonan, says that there is a "50-50" chance of racing taking place on Saturday. "There is still snow on the track but if the expected thaw comes on Thursday we could be airight," he says.

challenge event

Six leading British jockeys are to challenge a South African team in an eight-race series at Germiston and Durban in February. Joe Mercer will captain the visitors and he is determined to make amends for last year when, against all expectations, South Africa easily landed the team trophy.

Announcing the details in Johannesburg yesterday, Germiston's general manager, Wally Segal, said that the first four races would be run at Gosforth Park, Germiston', on February 13 with the remaining four taking place a week later at Greyville racecourse in Durban. As in 1981, the rides for each race will be decided by ballot with points being awarded on a sliding scale from 12 down to one.

The percentage of young riders who win through to the highest international echelon is small, but there are currently four — all girls — who are racing certainties to succeed.

The first is bred from a long line of hunting folk, the best possible pedigree. Rose-

But their best young borse, Miss Quicksilver by Go Tobann, the sire of so many good Irish international horses, has had to be sold as Tuffy, whose ambition is to make the Olympic team, cannot find a best possible pedigree. Rose-mary ("Tuffy") Tilley, aged 20, won the junior points championship in 1981. Her mother's family name is Wynn, a famous one Wynn, a famous one in hunting circles in North Wales, and her father, Mr W. O. D. At the Dutch event at Boekelo in October they also fed 25 people.

Tuffy won her first threeday event at Bramham last June on Major Derek Allhusen's Lauriman, a home-bred relation to his Olympic gold medal winner of 1972, Laurieston. She first evented her rieston. She first evented her mother's hunter, Tom Temp, who did nothing but hunt and point to point till he was nine, and is still going strong in the hunting field. The young rider was chosen for the British junior team, at 16. Lauriman, who did not go well for more distinguished riders, has been lent by the

This also applies to the junior points champion of 1980, Lucinda Moir of Dorset, whose mother, grand-mother, Betty Skelton, and great grandfather, Harry Buckland, have all made their names with horses. Another to follow is Mau-reen Piggott, daughter of the champion jockey, who is sponsored by Cathay Pacific airlines and is, like Princess Anne when she started a pupil of Alison Oliver.

Lesley McNaught is the outstanding young show jumping rider. The youngest ever holder of the national European champion and was word the young rider of the year by the British Equestrian Writers Association.

Yachting

The face that is a chart of all the world

By John Nicholls

Leslie Powles, aged 56, an electronics engineer, has been electrody sychtsman of the year for 1981. He received his award at the Boat Show, Earls Court, yesterday for his achievement in sailing singlehanded non-stop around the world. He left Lymington in July 1980 and returned there in June 1981 after sailing 28,512 miles.

What caught the imagination of the yachting journalists who voted for Powles (above) in their annual ballot to find the yachtsman of the year was the fact that he was entirely self-financed and until now has received little publicity for his feat. He actively discouraged sponsors, not that many knew of his plans, believing that many so-called adventurers receive far too much help in their exploits.

His attitude to sponsors cae be judged by his suggestion that they could train a monkey to sail

♠ Iris Murdoch's torrid tale THE BELL (BBC 2 9.25 pm) has been dramatised in four parts by Reg Gadney and boasts an impressive array of acting talent. The leading lady is Tessa Peake-Jones who plays Dora, the scatty, over-sexed wife of art historian Paul Greenfield containing a body for a few nours and Derek Fowlds as an earnest undertaker. Making a rare appearance as a straight actress is rock-singer Suzi Quatro but her part is largely an irrelevance and it is her eliminate voice that makes her name and it is the unfaithfulness of a former out research at a religious come to question Dan on a make community led by Michael Meade (an Holm), a disgraced teacher. GLC leader refuses to bow to fares ruling

Mr Kenneth Livingstone, Labour leader of the Greater London Council, said list night there night there were no circumstances in which he would comply with the judgment of the House of Lords on cheap

However, proposals to double London bus and train fares in March seemed likely to squeeze throught the first full meeting of the GLC since the indoment Roth Labour and th judgment. Both Labour and Conservative beaches divided on the issue. ...

The GLCs officials had strongly urged on councillors a package of measures which, they said, the law now demanded. These ran from a drastic cut in the subsidy paid to London Transport of the to Loadon Transport, to the of the package, fares would first have to rise by 100 per cent, and possibly by another 50 rs 100 per cent larer in the package. year. Bus and underground services would have to be cut by at least 25 per cent and staff made redundant.

Mr Livingstone held that the advice was sound, but he could not follow it. There are other [Labour councillors] who have made it clear that their respect for the law forces them to support the Law Lords, whatever the con-

"The crisis we face is no one that any one party should simply exploit for its own par-tisan advantage. I urge my colleagues not to make this a divisive issue."

He proposed to mobilize the support of Londoners to secure amending legislation from the Government. He did not intend to vote for fare increases or dramatic cuts in services which would eventually lead to major job losses and would do nothing to help the quality of life in London.

Mr Livingstone said there were those who shared his views that these measures were so appalling they could not bring themselves to vote for them. I cannot find it in my heart to comply with a decision which does so much damage to the interests of London, to public transport,

"We intend as a Labour group to fight in a computerry united position outside this hamber to mobilize popular legislation which will save the position of the pensioners' bus passes and allow us to con-tinue to subsidize London Transport, I urge Labour col-leagues that this is not an issue which should divide the Labour Party with acrimony. For the Conservatives, their leader Sir Horace Cutier, rejected the advice of the officials and lawyers. An increase in fares of only 60 per cent was needed. "I have always been suspicious of legal opinion. Old Aged Pensioners opinion. Old Aged Pensioners can take it from me that we will do everything in our

He said that Labour had created a chaotic mess in London Transport Amid inter-ruptions from Mr Livingstone's supporters, Sir Horace warned:
"If Mr Livingstone thinks we are going to pull his hot chestnuts out of the fire so that he can get off the griddle he has another thing coming".

Dr Tony Hart introduced a report of the GLC's Finance and General Purposes Committee and the Transport Committee. It would, he said, corect shortcomings in the London Transport Act, 1969, and so give the council the powers that everyone thought it had, to subsidize London Transport to readure Transport to produce a trans-port system in London which would mee the population's

The joint report expressed concern that the Conservative Party, having lost the GLC election, had been able to use the Court of Appeal and the Law Lords to reverse the decision of the electorate on improving Lords. improving London Transport's service levels and cutting fares."

☐ A decision on raising bus and rail fares in Greater Man-chester was deferred yesterday by the county's Passenger port Committee

Mr. Tony Harrison, the committee's chief executive, said that urgegnt legal advice was being taken on the implications for the county of the Law Lords' fares ruling.

The committee approved a budget of £163m for the next year in spite of the fact that it will produce a budget deficit of £17.6m. Mr Harrison said he believed that a fares sub-sidy of around film a week would probably be legal but as the subsidy required in the newly approved budget was more than £70m legal advice was being taken.

Situation."

Mr Heseltine, speaking on BBC Radio said it was a myth that other countries cope more efficiently with ice and snow. A colleague had been snow-bound for six hours at Zurich airport on Monday, he said.

Meanwhile, freezing fog continued to cover East Anglia and central England, with visibility as low as five yards on some roads. Motoring organisations repeated warnings to

In the United States, where the weather has killed at least 58 people, a new blizzard hit Buffalo, New York, leaving 25 inches of snow. Several people, mustly elderly, froze to death in their houses. In France, the weather began to improve after two weeks of widespread flooding, but about 200,000 people remained with-out electricity.

Even Britain's biggest chain of footwear shops, operated by the British Shoe Corporation Saxone nad Lilley & Skinner, is running out of stock. "Wellies of all colours and weines of all colours and sizes are selling thick and fast —it has been incredible, especially in the past four weeks, said Mr Geoffrey Maitland Smith, deputy chairman and chief executive of Sears Holdings, British Shoe's parent com-

Independent outlets with less stock back-up are already turning cusmmers away. One retailer in Islington, London, brought in 1,000 pairs of £7 wellies made in Holland and within 24 hours had less than a dozen pairs left. British shoe also reports heavy sales of leather boots and those overboes of yesteryear, golosies, which are now usually made

The recent appearance of the Princess of Weles in green field boots has done a power of good for the sales of this oppeardass wellie, according to Univoyal which produces these as well as more mundane wellies at its Dunfries factory. Univoyal has already exerced no Univoyal has already geared up its production by a fifth, but 10 times that amount would be needed to meet current demands from clamouring retailers, according to Mr. Tony Durken, footwear manager at Universal.

Plastic wellies, when they can be found, sell at between £4 and £6 while the rubber variety are likely to cost £10 or more. Specialized field boots are up to £15. That, it would appear, is not a high price to pay for foot comfort in soow

Evolution according to Hoyle

Survivors of disaster in an earlier world cess runs downhill, he says.

one is drien to the conclusion that the order must be the outcome of intelligent design.

The strongest reason for an intelligence creating carbona-ceous life-life as we know it would be stark necessity.

An intelligence far in advance of ours, faced with unstoppable changes in the cosmological environment, would ask whether the material structure of their bodies was of funda-mental importance to what

They would conclude it was not just as we have an in-stinctive feeling that what we our bodies. With the adamage of an immense technology, they rould find a new material structure to which the huge store of information that constituted themselves—their intelligence—could be transferred. Like any good computer programme, the whole would be put together as a kit of tiny sub-mits and sub-routines—in this case, the genetic fragments that are the genetic fragments that are the sub-routines of biology.

they really are.

Professor Sir Fred Hoyle, mutations of genes, so protible man who brought you the duce more highly evided sheory that life must have plants and samuals. Since delestrived from outer space is rious mutations are surely cometary material, has taken the proposition one stage fur ther. He now says Man is the the proposition one stage fur-ther life glow says Man is the re-emergence of a previous intelligence which, faced with an environmental catastrophe of cusmological proportions, broke up that intelligence into a kir of basic building blocks which was distributed through-out space. Given that the ordering of the biomaterials that support life could not have been mo-duced by chance, Sir Fred said,

That hit included the besic biological materials that form life as we know it. Arriving in a spitable environment, the life as we know it. Arriving in a spinable environment the Barth—the lat was able to express itself and develop fuelled by forther additions of generic material that still arrive from outer space.

It is a theory that Sir Fred believes by passes the difficulties of Darwinian evolution, aircumis for the religious impulse, and explains unitarisation behind the structures of life, which have a complexity that could not have occurred as orthodox science maintains, by thance.

Sir Fred outlined the ideas yesterday at the Royal Institution, in the ansual lecture sponsored by Onini, the magasure that mixes science fact and science fifotion to such affect that it salls one million. sine that it selds one mailton to such effect that it selds one mailton copies a month worldwide.

Sir Fred, however, would have us believe he is in carnest. He starts by debunking the theory that hie began in a primordial soup, which by some random process produced the 200,000 precisely ordered.

the 200,000 precisely ordered chains of amino-acids on which life depends. The chance of that happening, he says, is like roiling an uninterrupted sequence of 5,000,000 sixes on an unbiased uninterrupted sequence of Darwinian struggle for survival 5,000,000 sixes on an unbiased which camnot explain the emergence of a Mozart, or a six goes on so attack the path our species is destined to selection, operating on random read, Sir Fred said.

Thus carbonaceous life put together as a deliberate act of creation to be built upwards, in a process that is still continuing, from the building blocks of genetic fragments. Evolution is thus driven by a pulling power from abor, not drien from within by a
